Asks Emergency Legislation To Keep Up Price Of Wheat

Suggestion That Government Guarantee Wheat Prices And Take Charge All Buying

Washington, D. C. Feb. 12.—(United Press)—Emergency legislation assuring the farmers of a fair price for their products is the only solution now in sight for the relief of distressing conditions in the agricultural regions, John F. Sinclair, Minneapolis banker, informed the Senate Agricultural Committee.

After presenting an alarming picture of conditions in the great spring wheat belt of the Northwest, showing large numbers of farms being sold for delinquent tax sales, many mortgage foreclosures, an increased number of bankruptcies and the heavy tax burden under the framers of this region are struggling, Sinclair gave the committee information showing that bankers and agricultural leaders of his region believe Congress must take some steps to insure higher prices for farm products.

Some of them want the government to assume charge of all wheat buying and push the price up, just as the government held the price of wheat down to about $2.26 during the war.

The Bankers Asked
Sinclair sent questionnaires to leading bankers of the four states of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana, asking them whether the farmer could be helped in other ways than by emergency legislation assuring him a fair price for his products. "I received 263 replies, said Sinclair, from 263 bankers, and in Minnesota 92 per cent replied that the farmer could be helped in any other way; 95 per cent replied in the same way in North Dakota, and 96 per cent made the same reply in Montana. Those replies came from the most conservative men in the communities, men who have always thought that if conditions got to the point where one had to stabilize prices that it was socialistic. Now, those men are the leaders in 263 different communities and the average would be 95 per cent of the replies to the effect that the only way it could be done would be to stabilize farm prices.

"The question was asked, 'What per centage higher should the price of farm products be than at present more nearly to balance the cost of articles purchased by the farmer.' Minnesota, 54 per cent, from 80 replies received.

North Dakota, 63 per cent, out of 101 replies.
South Dakota, 59 per cent, out of 51 replies.
Montana, 46 per cent, out of 29 replies.

The Price of Wheat
The next question was, 'What should be a fair price (average) for the farmer to receive at local elevator for his wheat?'
Minnesota, out of 66 replies, $1.58.
North Dakota, 105 replies, $1.58.
South Dakota 56 replies, $1.50.
Montana, 28 replies, $1.40.

"The farmers before the war paid interest very promptly. We had no

Willits Has No Use For "Soup And Fish" Duds

Harrisburg Feb. 10.—Social functions during the Pinchot administration will have to get along with Frank P. Willits, secretary of agriculture, in an ordinary dark business suit or else get along without him. The new secretary of agriculture told members of the cabinet at a conference with the governor that, he never owned a dress suit and didn't propose to own one now.

"I guess I'm long on farming, but short on society," he said. "I've lived on a farm all my life and have worn out a good many dozen pairs of overalls, but I never found it necessary yet to get into a dress suit."

The dress suit question, as far as Secretary Willits is concerned, is closed.

BANKER PICTURES ALARMING STATE OF THE FARMER

Washington D. C. Jan. 13. (United Press).—An alarming picture of conditions among the farmers in the great wheat belt of the Northwest has been given the Senate Agriculture Committee by John F. Sinclair, Minneapolis banker.

Pleading for Congress to come to the aid of these farmers by effective legislation, Sinclair attempted to show that suicides, bankruptcies, mortgage foreclosures and delinquent tax sales have increased greatly in this farming region during the last few years, as the result of the severe slump in the prices of farm products.

Sinclair, as head of a corporation which deals in farm mortgages, sent out questionnaires to the country bankers in Minnesota regarding conditions among the farmers. He declared one report was current in newspapers of that region that a half million farm mortgages on which interest had not been paid would be foreclosed.

All information collected by Sinclair was incorporated in the official hearings of the senate agricultural committee.

From the bankers of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, Sinclair obtained the information regarding suicides among the farmers, acts which were said to be unusual in pre-war days.

Many Suicides
From Minnesota bankers he received 26 replies, listing 31 suicides; from North Dakota, 29 replies, listing 87; from South Dakota, 14 replies, listing 32 suicides; from Montana, four replies, listing 15 suicides.

Sinclair stated that of course the information he obtained from his questionnaire did not represent complete information from any one state and that the actual number of suicides, bankruptcies and foreclosures was evidently much larger.

Sinclair then asked the bankers how many mortgage foreclosures were made on farms during the last 12 months in their territory.

"There were 70 banks in Minnesota that made reply, and they said that 956 mortgages were foreclosed," said Sinclair. In North Dakota there were 2456 from 92 replies. In South Dakota 51 banks answered that 960 foreclosures had taken place. Montana reported 965 foreclosures from 23 banks.

"The next question was: 'How many bankruptcies during the last 12 months?'"

"In Minnesota there were 328 from 90 replies."

"In North Dakota there were 743 reported in 97 replies."

"In South Dakota, the number 291 in 57 replies."

"Montana in 27 replies reported 182."

"This information must be qualified by the fact that many of the farmers are not going through bankruptcy, because the bankers have told them that if they will hang on, and they are hanging on, as one banker said, 'by their eyebrows.'"

"Then the question was asked: 'If the present condition continues, can the farmers work themselves out of their present financial difficulties?'"

Ninety-five per cent of the replies from the Minnesota bankers said that there was no hope on the present basis. In North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, with a total of 286 replies 100 per cent of the bankers said that the farmers could not work themselves out of the present difficulty unless some relief were given."

From 56 Minnesota replies, the number was given as 1717; from 90 North Dakota replies 2677; from 41 South Dakota replies, 1,763; from 28 Montana replies 2,012.

The woman struck her over the head with a sand bag and a handkerchief was drawn tight around her face. After that she became unconscious. Buyer Who Disappeared With Thousands Turns Up In A Sanitarium

New York, Feb. 12.—The order for the arrest of Mortimer E. Lautman, buyer for Kaufman brothers department store of Pittsburgh, issued after he was alleged to have disappeared with $75,000, will not be served. It was intimated today at police headquarters when it was definitely ascertained that he had been located.

Lautman, has been in a sanitarium in a city near Pittsburgh.

The order for Lautman's arrest was issued by Chief Inspector Lacey and Inspector Coughlin after Sol Michaels, a lace manufacturer, complained that he had given the missing man $20,000 which he had failed to account for.

No request has been made to the police of the Pennsylvania city for his apprehension, it was said at police headquarters, due to the fact that Lautman, obviously suffering from amnesia or aphasia, had not deliberately vanished with the money.

Intimations were further given that he would not be molested until he had had a chance to straighten out his financial affairs.

THIRTY GIRLS ARE EARNING WAY THRU STATE COLLEGE

There are at least thirty girls now attending the Pennsylvania State College who have thrown aside the old-fashioned idea that it takes a great deal of money for girls to get a college education which none but those from very wealthy families can afford. There are several hundred young men students who earn most of their way there during the entire four years, and more girls students are looking to odd jobs every year for the payment of the bulk of educational costs.

Some of the girls earn their room and board living with the families of faculty members; others do cooking, plain and fancy sewing, some take care of children after class hours.

They urged him to lay aside the ship subsidy bill so that the passage of the British legislation would be assured.

Senate Sidetracks Subsidy.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The administration's ship subsidy bill was sidetracked in the Senate today in favor of the British war funding debt bill. West Side Mothers Are Again Invited To The Schoolhouse

The invitation extended last week to the West Side women is urgently repeated. The affair in question is a tea, the time four to five on Wednesday afternoon and the place the school house. 'CLEARSTONE' WILL IDENTIFY PRODUCT STONE HOUSE FARM

"Clearstone" is the trade mark name that has been reserved exclusively for the use of the Stone House Farm Co., of Clearfield, as a prefix to the regular registration name for all Holstein animals raised on the Stone House ranch, and registered with the Holstein Friesian Association of America, according to an official announcement recently made by Secretary F. L. Houghton, of Brattleboro, Vt.

All registered animals carry besides a registry number a family name usually indicating the ancestral bloodlines. As a means of identifying the various breeding establishments of the country trade mark names are reserved by the Association for the exclusive use of breeders. Thus, an animal can always be identified as to its original birthplace. Every Holstein man in the United States knows that a cow named Pabst Clover Blossom must come from the Pabst Stock Farm, of Oconomowoc, Wis. In a like manner animals carrying the prefix "Clearstone" will in the future be recognized as coming from the Stone House herd of Clearfield.

The farm name is a good advertisement. It marks the farm home and the place of business. It dignifies the business and increases the value of the property. It shows a pride in the management and fosters love of tradition. A good farm name can be sold with the land and products as the "good will" of a firm can be sold with the business. Certain localities in the past have become famous because of their farms, and the distinctiveness which goes with the naming of them.

In connection with the naming of the farm, it is well to think of the ways of drawing the attention of the passerby. In these days of autos and tourists, it is the grasping of a potential advertising opportunity to display on the roadways at the entrance to the farm yard, the farm name and the name and address of the owner. Suspended therefrom might be the illustration of a cow, a bee-hive, an ear of corn or what-not suggesting the business specialty. Such would serve as a mark of identity.

Over fifteen thousand of such names have been reserved by the members of the Holstein-Friesian Association, and pamphlets giving instructions for erecting appropriate signs are distributed free by the Association.

E. L. Kriner Of Shady Side Farm A Success At Raising Field Corn

E. L. Kriner, of Shady Side Farm has demonstrated that he is not only the sweet corn king of this section, but that he has attained some success in growing field corn. Twenty ears of his White Capped Yellow Dent corn filled a one-half bushel measure. The ears weigh 17 1-2 pounds. Mr. Kriner grew 615 bushels by measure on five acres, the average being cut down by a row of oak trees that borders on the west side of the field.

Mr. Kriner attributes his success largely to good seed, backed up by fifteen years of experience and careful study of conditions. Mr. Kriner is a careful reader of the farm papers, and also gains knowledge by attending institutes and other farmers' meetings.

"There has never been a financial failure" in any woman's club," she said. "They own a large amount of property, and have built beautiful clubhouses in many cities—several of them right here in Philadelphia. And in not one instance has any one of them been sold by the sheriff."

"This is a signal virtue that can be coupled with the progressive programs that they conduct. In many instances, they have been instrumental in obtaining important legislative measures, and have been always a center for cultural, artistic and spiritual education. And it is the latter—spiritual education—that makes them really great."

CONSTABLE OF BIGLER TOWNSHIP CAUGHT IN PINCHOT STATE POLICE DRAGNET ON MOONSHINE RUNNERS

PENNSYLVANIA'S FAITH IS PLEDGED TO STATE COLLEGE

Purely State-owned and State-begun, It Should Have First Attention From the Legislature.

NEED IS IMMINENT

State College, Pa., Feb. 12.—"The faith of the state was pledged just sixty years ago to do its share in supporting what is now the Pennsylvania State College," said Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college, when asked today to describe exact relation between the Commonwealth and the college in view of provisions to be made by the present state legislature in the matter of college appropriations.

A State College ultimately came into existence in every state following the signing, by Abraham Lincoln, on July 2, 1862, of the Morrill Act of Congress, better known as the "land grant college act," according to President Thomas, who has made a deep study of the situation. It was "an act of giving public lands to the several states and territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts."

The legislature of Pennsylvania, on April 1, 1863, declared that the Morrill Act "is hereby accepted by the State of Pennsylvania, with all its provisions and conditions, and the faith of the State is hereby pledged to carry the same into effect."

Ever since that time, the state legislature at each meeting has made some provision for the maintenance and the erection of buildings at the Pennsylvania State College.

"In recent years the state appropriations to State College have not been large enough nor in keeping with the state's wealth and prosperity to give the people the kind of service they demand from an institution like Penn State," declared President Thomas.

Could Use Ten Millions.
"If the college could have the sum of $10,000,000 available during the coming two years, all of it could be used in improvement of conditions to accommodate only our present needs, with no undue expansion. More than half of this would be used for the erection of new buildings that have been the crying need at Penn State for the past ten years or more. That is an example of what Penn State service has come to mean to the people of the state."

President Thomas further points out that Penn State is the only institution of higher education in Pennsylvania to which "the faith of the state" has been pledged to carry into effect, as needs may be demonstrated from time to time, the purposes for which it was established.

"Successful legislatures for sixty years have confirmed this old pledge of the Commonwealth to Penn State," the college executive continued in his establishment of the fact that the state is alone responsible for the existence and maintenance of the college which can look to no other source for its livelihood. As a state institution, the college can not charge tuition to students who are residents of Pennsylvania.

Close Without Support.

"The Commonwealth has fulfilled its pledge by steady, though small appropriations, and the college has grown from one building to over forty owned by the state. A mere handful of students sixty years ago has grown to almost 6,000 a year on the campus with over 12,000 taking advantage of our extension work in every section of the state. Most Pennsylvania residents

Oscar Marion Had Ten Gallons In Car Going to Altoona; Conditions In Madera Deplorable.

OFFICERS MISFITS

Another evidence of the co-operation of the Pennsylvania State Police with the Pinchot dragnet of bootleggers off the highways of Pennsylvania and of the attitude of the state police when their efforts are directed into the proper channels is furnished Clearfield counties in the arrest last Thursday of three Madera citizens who were transporting liquor.

That the state police have spread an effective dragnet over all the highways and byways of the state is shown by the many arrests made since the memorable January 19th when Mr. Pinchot announced that Major Lynn Adams, director of the state police, had offered his services and those of his men to rid the state of bootleggers. That dragnet has been very broad and arrests have been made in nearly all parts of the state.

Special importance is attached to the arrest of the three Madera men sworn to enforce the law. For this reason there is special interest in the arrest made near Altoona on Thursday last. Even more interesting is this arrest which carried with it the confiscation of ten gallons of moonshine made in that section. Bigler township disliking community from whence comes a large percentage of the liquor that keeps Clearfield county wet. And rumor has it that this is the only real good moonshine made in this county any more to be made in and about Bigler township and retailers of that brand have a hard time keeping stock in hand. In fact, the federal prohibition agency, although they know who the retailers are here have never been able to catch the bootlegger with any stock on hand.

The three men arrested last Thursday evening, presumably while making a delivery to their Altoona distributor, were Constable Oscar Marion, his brother Harry Marion and M. Davis, all of Madera. Constable Marion was driving the car which the papers found on his person proved to be his own vehicle and while there was no incriminating evidence against the other two occupants of the car, all three were held in $1,000 bail for May term of court at Hollidaysburg by Alderman H. C. McDevland who gave them a hearing.

In the car was ten gallons of the brand which has practically put the Stoneville Chemical Company out of existence because of its superior quality.

The arrest was made on the Rock-horn mountain and many Altoona men who depended on their week-end supply from the source best known to Constable Marion went with parched throats while the aforesaid ten gallons repose in the state police head.

"But at situation has been reversed in the last four years, so that today in business, and I do not believe our business is exceptional, because we are in all these states, I doubt if a cent of the interest paid at present, and the obligations run into several millions of dollars that we have handled through our own organization. I think we can say, therefore, that if that condition exists today and did not exist in 1914 and 1915, that it is due to the fact that the farmer is not making enough on his products to pay his taxes and interest and have anything left over. That is a result of the fact that the farmer is not organized and because he is not organized is forced to take the world market price as a basis for the price which receives in America."

Students are now familiar with the agricultural (county agents), engineering, mining, home economics and educational extension features maintained by the college. State and federal funds have done all this.

"The buildings at State College are valued at $4,000,000 and the equipment in them is worth almost two million more. It is an assured fact that the college is so absolutely dependent upon state appropriations that if such financial aid were withdrawn for one year, three fourths of the students would have to be sent home and nearly all faculty members released from college employ."

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

As a result of the World War they are mighty short of "cannon fodder" over in Europe and to the end of supplying this deficiency the thinking men of every European country are devising ways and means to increase the birthrate. A compulsory marriage law has been introduced in the Turkish Nationalist assembly providing that all men of 25 must marry and that families shall have one child at least every three years, said a dispatch from Angora today. It is designed to re-populate Turkey.

In France they are not so much concerned over how or when and where they get the babies, just so they get them. Agitation for protection of unmarried mothers in view of the declining birth rate has led to passage of an ordinance in the Department of Ardennes, Northern France, permitting any woman to enter a public maternity hospital and leave with her child without revealing her identity.

The Department was one of those occupied during the war by the Germans and later by Allied troops. Consequently unmarried mothers as a class are regarded with more sympathy there than in many other places. It is being urged that Paris adopt a similar ordinance on the ground that France is so much in need of children she should not neglect the mothers of any.

The Ardennes ordinance provides a prospective mother need only fill out a form giving her name, age, place of birth and residence and address of the person she wants notified in case of death. The woman herself seal this in an envelope which is never to be opened unless she requests it or she dies during childbirth.

The envelope is given a hospital number and filed. The woman is known in the hospital only by the number.

In connection with the movement to have this law copied all over the country, the National Alliance for Increasing the Population of France soon will be debated in the Chamber of Deputies.

Births in these cities, such as Paris, Marseilles and Lyons, were 7 per cent less in 1922 than in 1921. There were 12 per cent fewer marriages. It is expected the whole subject soon will be debated in the Chamber of Deputies.

The dollar is getting smaller weekly. Yesterday it had only the same purchasing power as 63.1 cents in 1913, according to the index number of general prices compiled by Irving Fisher.

The peak of high prices was reached in May, 1920. Then as prices fell, the dollar rose. A year ago, in January, 1922, the dollar purchased the same amount of commodities as 72.6 cents before the war. The purchasing power of the pre-war dollar the last four weeks has been as follows:

Week ended January 13, 64.1c.
Week ended January 20, 63.8c.

Week ended February 3, 63.8c.
Week ended February 10, 63.1c.

"Have a drink of milk?"

Ten years ago that would have been a joke. Today it is an actuality and a practice. There is more milk being used today as ever before. Ice cream plants are running to more than capacity and in every locality there are new factories being built or additions being made to those already there. Dairy products are today a part of the daily ration of adults as much as children and more than one daddy cries today because the kids get the milk that the milk man leaves.

This being the case, why should we not give more attention to the subject of milk? Those of us who live in towns simply take for granted that we will always be able to get all the milk we want and give no thought of where tomorrow's supply is coming from.

Clearfield could no more afford to go without milk for a week than without water. What if the supply should dwindle or fall altogether?

County Agent Sterrett is giving the milk supply of the county great deal of attention. The Livestock Page in this issue, edited by him, is devoted entirely to subjects pertaining to milk production and distribution. It is a subject that every one of us should study and Mr. Sterrett has approached the subject from the consumer's as well as the producer's angle.

Read the Livestock Page as well as the front page. It will be profitable to you and your children.

Persons in open revolt against prohibition and all who preach disregard of law are the most dangerous radicals in the United States. Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard University, declared recently. His address was one of several during discussion before the National Republican Club of the question: "Is radicalism undermining constitutional government in the United States?"

The radicalism of the forces of lawless reaction, Prof. Hart said, was far more dangerous than the radicalism of those who tried to bring about changes in the American form of government.

State Senator Clayton R. Lusk, who served as chairman of a legislative committee that investigated radicalism in New York State, declared that the strength of the radical movement in this country had diminished considerably during the last few years. Though defending measures of repression of criminal radicalism, he said more important protection of the American Constitution was in firmation of its fundamental principles.

"Radicalism," said Norman Thomas, director of the League for Industrial Democracy, "is not undermining constitutional government in the United States half as much as the reactionary conservatism which tries to make of the Constitution a straitjacket."

The arrest of Constable Manion of Madera at Altoona one evening last week ought to go a long way toward proving the contention of The Progress that many local police officers were in sympathy with, at least in sympathy with, the bootleggers and other violators of the Eighteenth Amendment and a blight on the community.

It ought also to give the citizens of those communities where the peace officer are "good fellows" in their relations with violators, something tangible on which to base opinions as to their worthiness to continue in office.

The law abiding element of most communities, and we know that Bigler Township is no exception, have been helpless to better their plight. Although there is a prohibition statute on the books, with officers sworn to enforce that law, they daily see drunken men and other evidence of wholesale violation. It has not been an uncommon sight to see these selfsame officers smirking under the influence of moonshine liquor and home brew concoctions and even in advanced state of intoxication. Little wonder that they have wondered whether the old conditions, with the saloon was not better. At least, under the saloon, such a state of affairs was to be expected.

Bigler Township has the type of citizens that we think it will be some changes of complexion on next election day. The law and mighty, though blind and deaf, will fall.

quarters at Hollidaysburg.

The better class of citizens of Bigler township have long prayed for the delivery from the deplorable conditions existing, particularly in the town of Madera, where, practically every evening, and raised during the day, there are scenes which would do credit to the days of the open saloon.

Well do they know last traveling men coming out of that community report that Madera is now the worst spot in the county. Particularly do they say that there are more drinks there than at any place they visit and that the howling, cursing and outrageous actions of the salooners are making for the town a reputation that is not enviable in this enlightened age.

These same men who tell of conditions at Madera will tell you that the substantial citizens of the town complain of these conditions and confess that they are helpless to lift the community to the level of American ideal and put it on a par with other communities where an effort is being made to enforce the law and ban the illicit liquor dealer and rum runner are equal outcasts instead of being held up as being "sleek enough to get by."

It is not at all unusual to hear the youth of Madera boasting of the ability of certain men to evade the law. We have it from responsible sources that the youth who do understand the rudiments of home brewing and home distilling is a serious article and it has been our privilege to smell of some of these concoctions. To judge from the conversation to be heard about Madera it is an accomplishment to be able to make liquor in which great pride is taken and to judge from the intoxicated men one sees on the streets, there are many bars running full blast although doors are locked and window blinds are drawn. Conditions generally make it very evident that there is an absolute lack of support on the part of Bigler township peace officials to the county and state officers charged with law enforcement.

The citizens of Bigler township, however, just the same as in all other communities are of the right type and will, in time, bowl over those misfits in office who are bringing the name of their community into disrepute. In fact, they are just waiting for the opportunity.

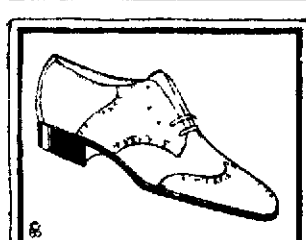

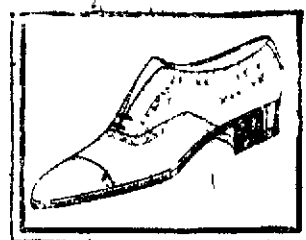

Law enforcement can never be expected from the crowd in control now. It would interfere with the source of their own supply.

Let us hope that the men in office will be held up as being "sleek enough to get by."

The man who is ready to give progress.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D. C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. L. A. HEWITT, 1529 Penna. Ave. S. E., Washington, D. C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

The Boys Marine Band gave the second of a series of Sunday afternoon concerts in the Morris Opera house, Saturday afternoon. There was not such a large crowd of people present, but those who were present enjoyed the hour and heard several fine selections of music. A silver collection was lifted amounting to a sum exceeding $30.

C. T. Doherty, who has been a Curwensville visitor with his brother W. Doherty, for a week or two, returned to his home in New Bethlehem last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bloomfield, of Johnson, Pa., guests in the home of Mrs. Manaval, High street Sunday and Monday.

Mrs. Robert Adams, of Tyrone, is visiting Mrs. Marcha Cole, whose residence is on Anderson street.

There were drunks galloping about the streets of this town on Saturday night. Some of them had imbibed the real John Barleycorn while others swayed about having tasted imaginary moonshine and wanted to make an exhibition of themselves greatly to the disgust of all those who witnessed their antics. There was one act and the participants ran afoul of Chief Clark who escorted them to the office of Southdale, who assessed each a fine of $5.00. There will be some of the others asked to step forward to the captain's desk for a like contribution.

About three hundred kids from the lower grades in the stone house of knowledge bided time in the theatre yesterday afternoon and were admitted free to a feature of some nature that was on the screen interesting to the youngsters.

Frank McLaughlin was turned out of an unseemly Sunday forenoon and had one of his ankles and leg severely injured. He attended the morning service of St. Timothy Catholic church and in an effort to turn the sleigh around for a home trip the accident occurred.

Mr. I. Kantar, of the firm of Kantar & Sons, drifted over to Altoona yesterday for a hand shake with his numerous friends who are carrying on business in that city. While we are about it we might just as well say that Leonard Kantar has been selected as general manager of the new Kantar branch store to be opened at Bradford, Pa.

Five degrees below zero was the record in this vicinity yesterday morning. On February 8th, 1908, we had 18 degrees below the point, and a few years later on the same date, the needle said 38.

Today, after the noon hour, the first session of the Spangmoore Chautauqua which came to Curwensville for a three days stand, carried out the first program in the Strand theatre. The attendance was as large as could be expected at the first session. The concert by the Fisher-Schenk company was a most pleasing feature of the program and was well worth the price of admission alone. At the night session another concert was featured by this same combination of musicians. Owing to circumstances a change was made in the lecture; William Sterling Bettis, who has been booked for the task was listed for the second evening and Hon. Chas. H. Pope, substituted with his "social Redemption" Bettis will deliver his lecture "Life Portrayal" on the evening of the second day, Wednesday.

The Progress is twelve cents per week by carrier. Fifty cents per month by mail. $4.00 a year, by mail only, if you pay a year in advance.

There has been no services held in the local M. E. church for some time pending installation of a new furnace.

Walker & Co., of Brisbin have started an extensive drilling campaign in this section for coal and clay. They are now operating on the farm of Alfred Buck.

Merrill Kyler who recently bought A. B. Lansberry's general store reports a large growing business. He is a very enterprising young business man and merits the confidence of all.

WINBURNE

The pageant "The Search for the Light," given Friday evening in the Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society, was unanimously voted a splendid success. Too much credit and praise cannot be accorded its able directors, Miss Bortner of the High School faculty, and Miss Dorothy Williams, teacher of Winburne Seventh Grade. Its interpretation, Christianity the only true religion, was clearly brought forth, and the audience felt that they had received a great deal of valuable instruction. About fifty people participated in the pageant. Principal roles being ably filled by Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Mudge and Mr. John Barr. Appropriate music furnished by Mrs. David Hodge, aided by the choir, was an important feature. Very interesting and attractive were the costumes which were typical of the foreign lands represented by the various characters. The free will offering, amounting to $20.00, will be devoted to missions.

Much sympathy goes out to Mrs. A. E. Hess and son George and Miss Merritt who were called to Tredford, Pa., on account of the death of their mother, Mrs. George Hess.

This said occurrence took place after a short illness with pneumonia. The eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Straw, he was well known here and held in high esteem by his many friends of this place.

Kylertown is suffering an epidemic of measles. Many homes are quarantined, and every means is being taken to check the disease and it is hoped no serious developments will occur. Cooper Township High School and Kylertown schools will be closed during this week.

Miss Lillian Pooley, one of our efficient telephone operators, is spending the week-end with relatives in Clearfield.

Mrs. Dr. Thorp is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Cooper, of Beechwood, Pa.

Mrs. Miller McIndoe of Arcadia has returned to her home after visiting for a few days with her daughter Mrs. James Houston.

Mrs. Mudge and Mrs. G. F. Diven entertained the Women's Missionary Society very delightfully at the home of the former Thursday evening. The attendance was fine and the meeting a very inspiring one.

Mrs. Mudge and daughter, Miss Margaret, and Miss Huling went to St. Benedict Saturday morning to stay a few days. From there Miss Mudge will journey to Clearfield, having been drawn as a juror.

Thomas Charlton who has been gravely ill with pneumonia, is now making a steady recovery.

Mrs. Thomas Barr, who has been on the sick list for a few weeks, went to the hospital Friday for examination.

WHY NOT A DIAMOND VALENTINE?

You fellows to whom that "nicest girl in the world" has said that she would share the rest of her life with you, could make no more fitting gift on the eve of a Valentine than a diamond.

And you have often said that the layman buying a diamond places himself in his jeweler's hands, for diamonds are deceptive.

And many of the people for whom we have furnished those brilliant bits of sparkle tell us that they feel that they got every cent's worth for their money.

The Milk Supply Of The Country Analyzed

Where It Comes From, Where It Goes And What You Should Use

The supply of milk in the world might be compared to the little verse learned in childhood which goes something like this:

Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Makes the mighty ocean,
And the dry land."

Few people realize the importance of the dairy business. We see a cow in the field here and there as we go along the road in the summer, or perhaps a herd of fine cattle grazing in the green pasture by the roadside, and we see trucks and wagons loaded with milk, every morning of the year, coming into town, yet do we fully appreciate the magnitude and volume connected with this branch of the farming industry. Of all farm crops and products produced on the farm, the dairy products stand first in the list, and in the State of Pennsylvania, according to the 1920 census, was 421,631,350 gallons of milk, representing almost one hundred million dollars worth of products, in the form of milk, cream, butter and cheese.

No accurate record is available for Clearfield County, but from statistics on hand, a fair average can be obtained for Clearfield County. There are approximately twelve thousand dairy cattle in the County, in milking herds over two years of age. The 1920 census shows that about 2,600,000 gallons of milk was produced in the year 1919 in Clearfield County. Of this amount produced, 492,919 gallons were sold as market milk. The balance was used on the farm, or sold in the following commodities:

3,598 gallons of cream, 7,621 gallons of butter-fat, 707,123 pounds of butter, made on the farm, and 353,839 pounds of this butter sold off the farm, the balance being used on the farm which would give a total value at market prices in 1920, of $418,860.00 for the dairy products produced on the farms of Clearfield County, and $414,447 value for the dairy products sold off the farm, which means that one-third of the dairy products produced in Clearfield County were consumed on the farms.

There are approximately three thousand farms in Clearfield County. Taking the average size of a family to be five, would mean there are approximately fifteen thousand of a farm population in Clearfield County, leaving a balance of approximately ninety-three thousand in the towns and cities of the County. This brings us to an interesting point. If fifteen thousand of one-seventh of our population consumed one-third of the total dairy products produced in the County, there must be something radically wrong with the distribution and marketing when we find a surplus of milk during many months of the year in our large towns such as DuBois and Clearfield.

Statistics show that the average consumption of milk and dairy products on the farm is one and one-half pint per capita in the large cities it drops down to one pint per capita, and in the small towns to almost one-half pint per capita. This means that the rural or farming population consumes almost the required amount of milk, namely, one quart per day per capita, while the inhabitants of the small towns consume only one-fourth the amount they should.

While no figures are available for Clearfield County, yet it is interesting to know that during a recent investigation, it was found that in the United States the total amount of milk produced is consumed in the following manner:

45% in fluid milk, 41% was made into butter, 6% into cheese, 2.9% condensed milk, 2.7% made into ice cream, and the balance fed to calves.

Clearfield County farmers can compete with dairy communities well supplied with cheap labor, and consequently very little milk is produced in this County is made into condensed milk or cheese. These two products are profitable means of utilizing surplus in large dairy centers.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK

Very few housewives appreciate the true food value of milk and its importance in the daily menu. Some think of it mainly as a food for children, others as a luxury, only to be used in tea or coffee when visitors are present.

A great deal of investigation has been done on milk during the recent years by the leading nutrition experts, especially by Dr. McCollum, who is known internationally for his work on this subject. He states, "There is no substitute for milk and its use should be distinctly increased instead of diminished, regardless of cost. It is a universally recognized fact that milk is essential for the proper growth and development of children and is should be equally as well known that milk is just as necessary in the diet of the adult as in that of the growing child. Any diet which will not support normal development in the young will not support the greatest well-being in the adult. Milk is our greatest protective food and its price must be allowed to go up as long as the cost of production makes it necessary and up so far as is essential to make milk production a profitable business. Unless this is done, the effects will soon become apparent in the lowering of our standards of health and efficiency."

An examination of any large groups of people in the cities or towns will show that where there is a high mortality from tuberculosis, milk is not being used to any great extent and in any large group where milk purchases are large this disease is not a menace. It is well known that in institutions where tuberculosis is successfully treated, milk forms the principle article of the diet of the inmate.

The reason for the consumption and the recommendations for the increase in consumption can be stated in a single sentence: Milk is one of the cheapest and is the most wholesome of foods because it is both a protective food and a food easily available for use by bone and muscle. The farm wife has not known precisely that one quart of milk is equal to four and three-tenths eggs as a source of protein, and to eight and five-tenths eggs, or one pound of lean meat, as a source of energy, as scientists have found that it is, but she has long preferred the milk as a food for her children, and has sold the eggs. The city housewife has not known the precise fact that milk at sixteen cents a quart is as cheap a source of proteins as a loin steak would be at thirty-five, and four-tenths cents a pound, or as eggs would be at forty-five cents a dozen, and she has likewise been scientifically ignorant of the extent to which milk is valuable as a source of mineral content.

Our high standards of living can be kept up without fear of ruinous competition, only if we choose for our diet those foods that give the best nutrition for the best price. Among our foods, dairy products easily take first prize.

TO ERADICATE CATTLE LICE

Most Satisfactory Treatment is Application of Raw Linseed Oil, Says Doctor Riley.

Application of raw linseed oil is the most satisfactory treatment for cattle infested with lice and other parasites, says Dr. W. A. Riley, chief of the division of entomology at University farm at St. Paul, Minn. One pint of oil applied thoroughly with a brush or rag will do for four or five cows. The application should be especially thorough on upper parts of the neck along the back from the poll to the base of the tail, the shoulder tops, and about the folds of the udder and esentechon, or it is in these places that the lice are the most abundant.

Doctor Riley says it is desirable to cut infestations to clip the hair for a width of three or four inches along the back from the head to the base of the tail. The treatment with oil should be repeated in about two weeks after the first application in order to kill the lice, which have hatched from the eggs. Thereafter it should be applied once a month during the winter. It is important to use raw linseed oil, and not the boiled linseed, for the latter may cause skin irritation.

WHY EAT OLEO?

We have on the one hand the manufacturers of Oleo advertising daily in our papers, that their product is cheaper and just as wholesome as butter. We have a cry from the farmers, on the other hand, that the Oleo-margarine business is driving the dairy farmer out of business so far as making butter is concerned. What is the real truth of the matter?

Oleo-margarine does not contain as much food value as does butter. Feeding experiments show that butter is far superior to oleo-margarine and that milk fat contains elements, called vitamins, essential to growth and that are not found in the vegetable or animal fats from which oleo-margarine is made. Butter, because of its growth-producing elements, is now recognized by every well informed person as being superior to oleo-margarine.

If measured in terms of energy alone, oleo-margarine is far less equal to butter, but under the same terms of measurement and beef tallow are also equal to butter. But who is there that advocates the use of lard or tallow or bread? Indeed, foods are no longer measured simply by the energy they will supply. We know that there are some other things demanded, and among these are the vitamins found in butter.

The superiority of butter to oleo-margarine has been shown many times in the feeding of small animals. Rats and guinea pigs have been fed rations just the same except that one lot will have received butter and the other oleo-margarine. The results of these tests have shown in every instance that the rats receiving butter made better growth and reproduced their kind in better vigor and strength.

This fact has also been observed in various charitable institutions. When these institutions sought to economize by using oleo-margarine, they have found many cases of an increase of disease and lack of thrift on the part of the inmates. Perhaps the most conclusive evidence of this was made in a survey of orphanage in the city of Rochester, New York, some years ago. Seven children, whose average age was eleven years were fed on a uniform diet, except that the butter fed during the first six months was replaced by oleo-margarine during the second six months. During the third period of six months, butter was again furnished.

Here are the surprising results: The average gain made by each child in the first six months when butter was used was 6.32 pounds. During the second period when oleo-margarine was fed, there was no gain in weight. Indeed, the children averaged a loss of 1.35 pounds. When butter was replaced the third period of six months, the children again gained back with a gain of 8.12 pounds for each child.

It is needless to say that this demonstration was quite sufficient to convince the managers of this orphanage that they should forever abandon the use of oleo-margarine.

During the past year the amount of oleo-margarine consumed in the United States was sufficient to replace about 5,000,000 pounds of milk that might have been used in the manufacture of butter. This is equal to the milk of 600,000 cows, half the cow population of the largest dairy state in the Union. It means not only was there less butter consumed, but that there were 5,000,000,000 pounds of whole milk forced out to the market, which tended to depress the prices of all other dairy products.

Instances could be multiplied by the thousandfold to show how essential to the welfare and health of people is this element that is found in butterfat. This was shown very conclusively during the great war when certain sections were deprived of dairy products. The people, particularly the children, developed certain types of malnutrition that only the feeding of butterfat or its equivalent in the form of something else was able to overcome. These facts have been frequently reported in Hoard's Dairyman.

The few farmers who fail to consume dairy products and purchase so called substitutes

MILK AND MILK PRODUCTS

The United States Department of Agriculture has set certain standards which the different States have accepted, and require manufacturers to conform to in name and content for the following milk products.

Blended milk is milk modified in the composition so as to have definite and stated percentage of one or more of its constituents.

Pasteurized milk is milk that has been subjected to a temperature not lower than one hundred and forty-five degrees Fahrenheit, for not less than thirty minutes. Unless it is bottled hot, it is cooled to fifty degrees Fahrenheit or lower.

Grade A milk is divided into raw milk and pasteurized milk. Milk coming under the first class must come from cows free from disease, as determined by the tuberculin test and physical examinations by a qualified veterinarian, and shall be produced and handled by employees free from disease as determined by the medical inspection of a qualified physician under sanitary conditions such that the bacteria count shall not exceed ten thousand per cubic centimeter at the time of delivery to the consumer.

Pasteurized Grade A milk shall be produced under the same conditions, and shall have more than two hundred thousand bacteria per cubic centimeter at any time, nor more than ten thousand bacteria per cubic centimeter at the time of delivery to the consumer.

Grade B milk shall be produced under the same sanitary conditions, and at no time exceed one million bacteria per cubic centimeter. All milk of this class shall be pasteurized under official supervision, and the bacteria count not exceed fifty thousand per cubic centimeter when delivered to the consumer.

Grade C milk shall be produced under similar sanitary conditions, and shall include all milk that is produced under conditions such that the bacterial count is not in excess of one million per cubic centimeter.

Sterilized milk is milk that has been heated at the temperature of boiling water, or higher, for a length of time sufficient to kill all organisms present.

Homogenized milk is milk that has been mechanically treated in such a manner as to alter its physical properties with particular reference to the condition and appearance of the fat globules.

Condensed, evaporated milk or concentrated milk is the product resulting from the evaporation of a considerable portion of the water from the whole fresh milk obtained direct from the cow and contains no less than 25.5 per cent. of total solids, and not less than 7.8 per cent. of milk fat.

Sweetened condensed evaporated or concentrated milk is the product resulting from the evaporation of a considerable portion of the water from the whole fresh milk obtained direct from the cow and contains no less than 25.5 per cent. of total solids, and not less than 7.8 per cent. of milk fat.

should be held up for public contempt and ridicule, not only for their neglect of the health of their own flesh and blood, but for the treason to the industry of which they are a part. These men, and we are glad to know that there are only a few, have no just grounds for complaint if dairy products become relatively cheaper than other products, for it is they who help to create a surplus and set a mighty example for the city consumers in certain cities and towns over the country, milk campaigns have been carried on to increase the dairy products consumed and to try and show the fallacy of using filled milk (milk that the butterfat therein has been taken out and vegetable fats substituted) and discard the use of filled milk and oleo and other substitutes. In several cities where the milk campaigns have been put on to educate the people to the value of dairy products, the merchants have gotten together to put Oleo in disrepute and to show its fallacy. These merchants came to realize that the welfare of their city and their business was directly dependent upon the prosperity of the surrounding country. They saw the value of putting an end to the competition of false butter or butter substitutes with the real product.

THE COST OF A QUART OF MILK

Study This Article and You Will Not Envy the Man Who Is Laboring to Produce.

PROFITS SMALL

By W. C. STERRETT
County Farm Agent

Few people not actively engaged in the production of milk realize the amount of labor and total cost to produce milk and deliver it to the door step of the city consumer. It would be interesting for the consumer, who is not familiar with the various phases of milk production to go with a quart of milk through its various processes from the time the food, which the cow consumes, is taken from the soil, fed to the cow and taken from the cow in the form of milk, is strained, cooled, hauled to the market where it is pasteurized, cooled, sterilized, bottled and delivered to the doorstep of the consumer.

It is an interesting journey, and one which requires experience, hard labor and money to produce a product that is sweet and clean at the time it reaches the consumer.

To produce a hundred pounds of milk, or forty-six and one-half quarts, requires on an average of 2.88 hours of labor, 33.5 pounds grain (concentrates), 45.3 pounds hay, 11.5 pounds of other forage, 32.2 pounds silage, and 9.4 pounds of other succulent feed, which at prevailing prices, figuring labor at twenty-five cents an hour, and feeds at the average yearly net cost of one hundred pounds of milk would be three dollars and twenty-five cents, or seven cents per quart. This would mean that the cost during the winter months would be slightly greater and during the summer months below this average. In fact a difference of almost three cents a quart is found in the cost of producing one hundred pounds of milk in the summer as compared to the winter. The feed and labor cost represents, on an average, only eighty per cent. of the total cost of producing the milk on the farm. The other twenty per cent. represents all overhead expenses, such as that portion of equipment devoted to the dairy and depreciation and other minor expenses such as veterinarian fees, etc., which will all add to make an additional cost of eighty-seven and one-half cents per one hundred, or a total cost of four dollars and thirteen cents per hundred, or 8.8 cents per quart. The above figures represent an average production of five thousand pounds of milk per cow per year, which would mean that if the average cow in Clearfield County produces five thousand pounds per year, the farmer could sell his milk at the farm for 8.8 cents per quart and break even, but investigation shows that such is not the case for the average production in Clearfield County is only slightly over four thousand pounds per cow per year, which means that the farmer who has four thousand pound cows is not getting twenty-five cents per hour for his labor, nor interest on his money, but rather is doing the work for the exercise and joy he might be getting out of it, and at the same time using the capital tied up in his dairy operations for the good of his fellow mankind.

Why is it then that the average dairyman can produce milk year after year with a loss, and how long will he continue to do so? The consumer says why is it that we pay fourteen cents per quart and the farmer gets only eight cents at the farm? If it is true, but the story is only half told, for it costs on an average of one and one-half cents per quart to deliver this milk to the distributing plant, and the remaining four and one-half cents to cover the other operations that the milk goes through from the farm.

The distributor, through whom the milk is pasteurized and delivered to the consumer, must work in close cooperation with both the producer and the consumer. The distributor utilizes the surplus of the farmer over the need of the market, and the consumer can help to make the proper amount of which nutrition experts claim a quart a day per person would mean every home on an average, consuming twice as much milk as they do at the present time. For investigation shows that the average consumption in Clearfield town is less than a pint per capita. Further than this, the consumer can materially assist in the lowering of the cost of milk by using more liquid milk and less condensed and evaporated milk.

FARM BUREAU TOPICS TOLD IN SHORT WAY

One of the important meetings of the month will be a potato meeting, held in the Whitehead Building, DuBois, February 23rd, at 1:30 P. M. Professor Nixon of State College will be the speaker. Everybody invited. Professor Nixon's reputation speaks for itself. It will be worth a hundred dollars of any man's money to hear him and it won't cost a cent.

The Annual Meeting of the DuBois Dairyman's Co-operative Association will be held on Thursday of this week, February 15th.

The Farm Bureau will order a car of Michigan Disease Free Russets through the County Co-operative Association, and would advise everyone who desires to obtain potatoes to send their orders in at once.

The readers of this page will notice that almost the entire page has been allotted to the dairy cow and her products. As will be noted, one of the essentials to more profit, is the eradication of tuberculosis. Where a number in a community sign up under the accredited plan arrangements will be made to take care of the work promptly. In the Clearfield district a test will be made within the next few weeks. Any one desiring to have their herds tested, at that time, March,

ESSENTIALS IN DAIRY PRODUCTION

By M. J. ARMS
Dairy Extension Department
Penna. State College

A good dairy cow is the most efficient means known for converting the coarser feeds grown on the farm into human food. Rightly kept, she provides the most effective way of marketing these feeds. Good cows, good dairymen and a fair market are the main factors in successful and profitable dairying. The first two of these factors are within the control of the individual farmer. Any change in market conditions usually comes from a change in the conditions of demand and supply or unit cost.

Farmers can save money, as well as time, by ordering their lime, fertilizer, etc., at an early date, so that they can be hauled to the farm on the snow. Prices are up and likely to go higher, so that delay will be expensive.

The Farm Bureau can still obtain the Breeder's Gazette and Hoard's Dairyman at reduced rates, and can take care of the subscriptions of all who desire.

Communities desiring Farmers Institutes during the month of March should send in their requests at once, together with a program of local talent and subjects they desire to be discussed by State speakers. These must be in within the next week in order to obtain speakers from State College for the month of tion on the part of producers. The difference between good and the poor dairy is great. The average cow in Pennsylvania produces 4,000 pounds of milk per year. A cow fed and cared for to the best known methods recently completed a record of 25,787 pounds of milk and 2,787 pounds of butterfat in one year. This one cow is doing the work of more than six average cows. It can hardly be hoped that an average cow in the country ever have a record as great as this, but the average does not produce at all. A pound of milk per cow is a very poor chance of a profit above all expenses of the year. The Babcock farmer to determine what each cow in the herd is doing. The dairyman will use these methods of checking up on the performance of his cows is adding an unnecessary hazard to his chance of making a profit on the year's business. Weed out the boarders in the herd and invest the capital in better cows on some more profitable farm enterprise.

The successful dairyman must have enough interest in his work to keep posted on the latest and best methods and put them into practice. The good cow must be cared for properly to do her best, and the good cow doing her best is the cow that is paying her feed bills, and putting light plants, running water, etc., in the home of her owner. Farming has become a business as true

BOXING MATCH PLEASES FIGHT FANS

The boxing match at the Globe Theatre last evening gave very general satisfaction to a large audience of fight fans.

The final bout was a whirlwind while it lasted. In this torrid session, scheduled for ten rounds, but which only lasted a little more than one, Kid Layman, the sturdy Huntington, W. Va., lightweight, knocked the stuffing out of Young Griffith, of Lockport, N. Y., shortly after the fourth round began.

Bobby Roberts, of DuBois, and Jackie Lewis, of Jamestown, N. Y., were pretty evenly matched in their bout, it taking a strong partisan to award the decision to either man. Both boys showed considerable promise.

Mickey Burkett, the Altoona dynamiter, blasted "Sprag" Keenan of DuBois into dreamland during the fifth round of their scheduled eight round bout. "Sprag" has the appearance of a corner but Burkett was too sturdy and had too much experience for the DuBois boy.

K. O. Kline and Frankie Ross, of Huntington, W. Va., went six rounds to a draw.

as the manufacture of automobiles. The man who can and will put his farming operations on good sound business principles has gone a long way in solving the question of successful farming. The important factor in any business is a complete set of accounts and the intelligent use of information to be obtained from them. Five minutes work a day will keep such accounts and give information which can be obtained in no other way. Every farmer should know which farm enterprises are profitable and why they are so.

High production is a very important factor in cost but it must come from cows having the ability to convert feed into milk efficiently. When one man in a community gets 10,000 pounds of milk and 330 pounds of butter-fat per cow per year from his herd at a feed cost of $82.00 per cow, while his neighbor is getting 7200 pounds of milk and 250 pounds of butter-fat from a herd of about the same breed of cows at a feed cost of $86.00 per head it is very significant of the difference in cows as well as dairymen.

How To Sleep
3-In-A-Bed

YES, IT CAN be done—but not like this.

The trouble is, most people go to bed with "something" on the mind—or ON THE STOMACH!

The answer is, no matter what the day has brought forth to upset your mind and digestive organs, take Beecham's Pills when you retire.

Though in no sense a "sleeping potion," this 80-years-famous household medicine so harmonizes the system that you can sleep in quiet and perfect rest, even in two feet of bed space.

Beecham's Pills are as efficient and harmless for children as for adults—sweetening the stomach, invigorating digestion and stirring liver and bowels to natural activity.

PLAY FOR CHILDREN

Play is a necessity of life. Without it children will not grow up into healthy, happy and normal men and women.

A very young child needs play to develop his muscles. It teaches him how to use his little hands and legs. He may play with a rattle or merely with his own toes, but all the time the exercise is helping him to grow stronger and bigger.

As he gets older, he learns to walk around and to make things. He imitates and uses his imagination, so that he can turn scrap paper into money and button hooks into fish hooks. He is broadening his outlook and improving his mind as well as his body.

At first a child plays alone. He invents all kinds of pastimes. He is satisfied to do a few simple things over and over again. Later, he requires company. He likes to play games that need two or three people. These games are less simple. New games have new things to teach him. When they no longer teach, the boy or girl tire of them and seek different ones.

Then, too, through competition games he learns sportsmanship and self reliance. In no other way do children learn so readily how to be good winners and good losers. Here they are thrown in contact with others of their own age. This helps to develop their judgment and ability to mix with other people. It is good for them in every way.

By all means let your child play outdoors as much as possible and with other children!

The first gray hair; the first eye-blur

Have you suffered that first age-blur of the eyes that comes with what we call middle age? If you haven't, it's because you're not yet forty, for this eye trouble comes to everyone about that age. It usually begins and is first noticed when reading.

This blur is a danger signal. It forces you to get the facts about your eyes. If you already wear glasses, from now on you will need new lenses or close work. Therefore it is immensely valuable to know that you can have lenses for distance and for reading in one pair of glasses; a combination of two pairs in one.

These bifocals are a remarkable device. Instantaneously, you can change your vision from distance, through one type of lens to close up, through another. With bifocals of Wollworth manufacture complete range of vision, far and near, is instantaneously, and this through beautiful inconspicuous lenses. In bifocals, as in every other Wollworth product, all that Science can give and Artistry add are at your command.

The service and quality of goods we offer you are of this high nature. You have learned to expect that of us. Asks Emergency Legislation To Keep Up Price Of Wheat

Suggestion That Government Guarantee Wheat Prices And Take Charge All Buying

Washington, D. C. Feb. 12. (United Press)—Emergency legislation assuring the farmers of a fair price for their products is the only solution now in sight for the relief of distressing conditions in the agricultural regions, John F. Sinclair, Minneapolis banker, informed the Senate Agricultural Committee.

After presenting an alarming picture of conditions in the great spring wheat belt of the Northwest, showing large numbers of farms being sold for delinquent tax sales, many mortgage foreclosures, an increased number of bankruptcies and the heavy tax-burden under the framers of this region are struggling, Sinclair gave the committee information showing that bankers and agricultural leaders of his region believe Congress must take some steps to insure higher prices for farm products.

Some of them want the government to assume charge of all wheat buying and push the price up, just as the government held the price of wheat down to about $2.26 during the war.

The Bankers Asked

Sinclair sent questionnaires to leading bankers of the four states of Minnesota, North Dakota and Montana, asking them whether the farmer could be helped in other ways than by emergency legislation assuring him a fair price for his products.

"I received 263 replies, said Sinclair, 'from 263 bankers, and in Minnesota 92 per cent replied that the farmer could not be helped in any other way; 95 per cent replied in the same way in North Dakota, and 96 per cent made the same reply in Montana. Those replies came from the most conservative men in the communities, men who have always thought that if conditions got to the point where one had to stabilize prices that it was socialistic. Now, those men are the leaders in 263 different communities and the average would be 95 per cent of the replies to the effect that the only way it could be done would be to stabilize farm prices."

"The question was asked, 'What per centage higher should the price of farm products be than at present more nearly to balance the cost of articles purchased by the farmer.' Minnesota, 54 per cent, from 80 replies received.

North Dakota, 63 per cent, out of 101 replies.

South Dakota, 59 per cent, out of 51 replies.

Montana, 46 per cent, out of 29 replies.

The Price of Wheat

The next question was, 'What should be a fair price (average) for the farmer to receive at local elevator for his wheat?'

Minnesota, out of 66 replies, $1.58.

North Dakota, 105 replies, $1.58.

South Dakota 56 replies, $1.50.

Montana, 28 replies, $1.40.

"The farmers before the war paid interest very promptly. We had no

Willits Has No Use For "Soup And Fish" Duds

Harrisburg Feb. 10.—Social functions during the Pinchot administration will have to get along with Frank P. Willits, secretary of agriculture, in an ordinary dark business suit or else get along without him.

The new secretary of agriculture told members of the cabinet at a conference with the governor that, he never owned a dress suit and didn't propose to own one now.

"I guess I'm long on farming, but short on society," he said. "I've lived on a farm all my life and have worn out a good many dozen pairs of overalls, but I never found it necessary yet to get into a dress suit."

The dress suit question, as far as Secretary Willits is concerned, is closed.

BANKER PICTURES ALARMING STATE OF THE FARMER

Washington D. C. Jan. 13. (United Press).—An alarming picture of conditions among the farmers in the great wheat belt of the Northwest has been given the Senate Agriculture Committee by John F. Sinclair, Minneapolis banker.

Pleading for Congress to come to the aid of these farmers by effective legislation, Sinclair attempted to show that suicides, bankruptcies, mortgage foreclosures and delinquent tax sales have increased greatly in this farming region during the last few years, as the result of the severe slump in the prices of farm products.

Sinclair, as head of a corporation which deals in farm mortgages, sent out questionnaires to the country bankers in Minnesota regarding conditions among the farmers. He declared one report was current in newspapers of that region that a half million farm mortgages on which interest had not been paid would be foreclosed.

All information collected by Sinclair was incorporated in the official hearings of the senate agricultural committee.

From the bankers of Minnesota, North and South Dakota and Montana, Sinclair obtained the information regarding suicides among the farmers, acts which were said to be unusual in pre-war days.

Many Suicides

From Minnesota bankers he received 26 replies, listing 31 suicides; from North Dakota, 29 replies, listing 87; from South Dakota, 14 replies, listing 32 suicides; from Montana, four replies, listing 15 suicides.

Sinclair stated that of course the information he obtained from his questionnaire did not represent complete information from any one state and that the actual number of suicides, bankruptcies and foreclosures was evidently much larger.

Sinclair then asked the bankers how many mortgage foreclosures were made on farms during the last 12 months in their territory.

"There were 70 banks in Minnesota that made reply, and they said that 956 mortgages were foreclosed," said Sinclair. In North Dakota there were 2456 from 92 replies. In South Dakota 51 banks answered that 960 foreclosures had taken place. Montana reported 965 foreclosures from 23 banks.

The next question was: "How many bankruptcies during the last 12 months?"

"In Minnesota there were 328 from 90 replies."

"In North Dakota there were 743 reported in 97 replies."

"In South Dakota, the number 291 in 57 replies."

"Montana in 27 replies reported 182."

"This information must be qualified by the fact that many of the farmers are not going through bankruptcy, because the bankers have told them that if they will hang on, and they are hanging on, as one banker said, 'by their eyebrows.'"

"Then the question was asked 'If the present condition continues, can the farmers work themselves out of their present financial difficulties?'

Ninety-five per cent of the replies from the Minnesota bankers said that there was no hope on the present basis. In North Dakota, South Dakota and Montana, with a total of 286 replies 100 per cent of the bankers said that the farmers could not work themselves out of the present difficulty unless some relief were given."

From 56 Minnesota replies, the number was given as 1717; from 90 North Dakota replies 2677; from 41 South Dakota replies, 1,763; from 28 Montana replies 2,012.

Sister Cecilia, returning to the school in a dazed condition late yesterday, told a story that amazed her hearers. She was in the music room of the school when a man and a woman entered. The woman struck her over the head with a sand bag and a handkerchief was drawn tight around her face. After that she became unconscious. She later escaped in a taxicab with the aid of a policeman.

May Force Harding to Drop Subsidy.

Washington, Feb. 13.—President Harding may have to lay aside the ship subsidy bill to insure passage of the British debt funding measure, it was indicated today.

Buyer Who Disappeared With Thousands Turns Up In A Sanitarium

New York, Feb. 12.—The order for the arrest of Mortimer E. Lautman, buyer for Kaufman brothers department store of Pittsburgh, issued after he was alleged to have disappeared with $75,000, will not be served. It was intimated today at police headquarters when it was definitely ascertained that he had been located.

Lautman, has been in a sanitarium in a city near Pittsburgh.

The order for Lautman's arrest was issued by Chief Inspector Lacey and Inspector Coughlin after Sol Michaels, a lace manufacturer, complained that he had given the missing man $20,000 which he had failed to account for.

No request has been made to the police of the Pennsylvania city for his apprehension, it was said at police headquarters, due to the fact that Lautman, obviously suffering from amnesia or aphasia, had not deliberately vanished with the money.

Intimations were further given that he would not be molested until he had had a chance to straighten out his financial affairs.

THIRTY GIRLS ARE EARNING WAY THRU STATE COLLEGE

There are at least thirty girls now attending the Pennsylvania State College who have thrown aside the old-fashioned idea that it takes a great deal of money for girls to get a college education which none but those from very wealthy families can afford. There are several hundred young men students who earn most of their way there during the entire four years, and more girls students are looking to odd jobs every year for the payment of the bulk of educational costs.

Some of the girls earn their room and board living with the families of faculty members; others do cooking, plain and fancy sewing, some take care of children after class hours.

West Side Mothers Are Again Invited To The Schoolhouse

The invitation extended last week to the West Side women is urgently repeated. The affair in question is a tea, the time four to five on Wednesday afternoon and the place the school house. The invitation is jointly from the teachers who offer the hospitality of the school house and the Mothers' committee of Community Service in that ward who provided the part that make a tea of it there is no special axe to grind in this gathering—just a pleasant little neighborhood how-do-you-do and all are cordially invited for a cup of that which cheers and a little visit with their friends whether there are children in school or not.

NO WOMEN'S CLUBS FAIL SAYS MRS. BLANKENBURG

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 13.—Several angles to the success of women's clubs were pointed out by Mrs. Lucia L. Blankenburg at the luncheon recently in the clover room of the Bellé

Many spare dollars are earned in college and town office by girls who are competent stenographers. Girl earning their way at Penn State are every bit as eager to follow every opportunity, as are the men students. The fact that there is no tuition charged at Penn State is a big help to students who must pay for their own education. One out of every ten girls at State College earn most of their expenses, and the percentage for men is even greater.

L. Houghton, of Brattleboro, Vt.

All registered animals carry besides a registry number a family name usually indicating the ancestral bloodlines. As a means of identifying the various breeding establishments of the country trade mark names are reserved by the Association for the exclusive use of breeders. Thus, an animal can always be identified as to its original birthplace. Every Holstein man in the United States knows that a cow named Pabst Clover Blossom must come from the Pabst Stock Farm, of Oconomowoc, Wis. In a like manner animals carrying the prefix "Clearstone" will in the future be recognized as coming from the Stone House herd of Clearfield.

The farm name is a good advertisement. It marks the farm home and the place of business. It dignifies the business and increases the value of the property. It shows a pride in the management and fosters love of tradition. A good farm name can be sold with the land and products as the "good will" of a firm can be sold with the business. Certain localities in the past have become famous because of their farms, and the distinctiveness which goes with the naming of them.

In connection with the naming of the farm, it is well to think of the ways of drawing the attention of the passerby. In these days of autos and tourists, it is the grasping of a potential advertising opportunity to display on the roadways at the entrance to the farm yard, the farm name and the name and address of the owner. Suspended therefrom might be the illustration of a cow, a bee-hive, an ear of corn or what-not suggesting the business specialty. Such would serve as a mark of identity.

Over fifteen thousand of such names have been reserved by the members of the Holstein-Friesian Association, and pamphlets giving instructions for erecting appropriate signs are distributed free by the Association.

E. L. Kriner Of Shady Side Farm A Success At Raising Field Corn

E. L. Kriner, of Shady Side Farm has demonstrated that he is not only the sweet corn king of this section, but that he has attained some success in growing field corn. Twenty ears of his White Capped Yellow Dent corn filled a one-half bushel measure. The ears weigh 17 1-2 pounds. Mr. Kriner grew 615 bushels by measure on five acres, the average being cut down by a row of oak trees that borders on the west side of the field.

Mr. Kriner, attributes his success largely to good seed, backed up by fifteen years of experience and careful study of conditions. Mr. Kriner is a careful reader of the farm papers, and also gains knowledge by attending institutes and other farmers' meetings.

Mr. Kriner, in honor of Dr. Russell H. Conwell's eightieth birthday.

"There has never been a 'financial failure' in any woman's club," she said. "They own a large amount of property, and have built beautiful clubhouses in many cities—several of them right here in Philadelphia. And in not one instance has any one of them been sold by the sheriff."

"This is a signal virtue that can be coupled with the progressive programs that they conduct. In many instances, they have been instrumental in obtaining important legislative measures, and have been always a center for cultural, artistic and spiritual education. And it is the latter—spiritual education—that makes them really great."

CONSTABLE OF BIGLER TOWNSHIP CAUGHT IN PINCHOT STATE POLICE DRAGNET ON MOONSHINE RUNNERS

PENNSYLVANIA'S FAITH IS PLEDGED TO STATE COLLEGE

Purely State-owned and State-begun, It Should Have First Attention From the Legislature.

NEED IS IMMINENT

State College, Pa., Feb. 12.—"The faith of the state was pledged just sixty years ago to do its share in supporting what is now the Pennsylvania State College," said Dr. John M. Thomas, president of the college, when asked today to describe exact relation between the Commonwealth and the college in view of provisions to be made by the present state legislature in the matter of college appropriations.

A State College ultimately came into existence in every state following the signing, by Abraham Lincoln, on July 2, 1862, of the Morrill Act of Congress, better known as the "land grant college act," according to President Thomas, who has made a deep study of the situation. It was "an act of giving public lands to the several states and territories which may provide colleges for the benefit of agriculture and the mechanic arts."

The legislature of Pennsylvania, on April 1, 1863, declared that the Morrill Act "is hereby accepted by the State of Pennsylvania, with all its provisions and conditions, and the faith of the State is hereby pledged to carry the same into effect."

Ever since that time, the state legislature at each meeting has made some provision for the maintenance and the erection of buildings at the Pennsylvania State College.

"In recent years the state appropriations to State College have not been large enough nor in keeping with the state's wealth and prosperity to give the people the kind of service they demand from an institution like Penn State," declared President Thomas.

Could Use Ten Millions.

"If the college could have the sum of $10,000,000 available during the coming two years, all of it could be used in improvement of conditions to accommodate only our present needs, with no undue expansion. More than half of this would be used for the erection of new buildings that have been the crying need at Penn State for the past ten years or more. That is an example of what Penn State service has come to mean to the people of the state."

President Thomas further points out that Penn State is the only institution of higher education in Pennsylvania to which "the faith of the state" has been pledged to carry into effect, as needs may be demonstrated from time to time, the purposes for which it was established.

"Successful legislatures for sixty years have confirmed this old pledge of the Commonwealth to Penn State," the college executive continued in his establishment of the fact that the state is alone responsible for the existence and maintenance of the college which can look to no other source for its livelihood. As a state institution, the college can not charge tuition to students who are residents of Pennsylvania.

Close Without Support.

"The Commonwealth has fulfilled its pledge by steady, though small appropriations, and the college has grown from one building to over forty owned by the state. A mere handful of students sixty years ago has grown to almost 6,000 a year on the campus with over 12,000 taking advantage of our extension work in every section of the state. Most Pennsylvania residents are proud of it."

Oscar Marion Had Ten Gallons In Car Going to Altoona; Conditions In Madera Deplorable. OFFICERS MISFITS

Another evidence of the co-operation of the Pennsylvania State Police with the Pinchot State Police in bootlegging off the highways of Pennsylvania and of the attitude of the state police when their efforts are directed into the proper channels is furnished Clearfield counties in the arrest last Thursday of the state highway near Altoona, of three Madera citizens who were transporting liquor.

That the state police have spread an effective dragnet over all the highways and byways of the state is shown by the many arrests made since the memorable January 19th when Mr. Pinchot announced that Major Lynn Adams, director of the state police, had offered his services and those of his men to rid the state of bootleggers. That dragnet has been very broad and arrests have been made in nearly all parts of the state.

Special importance is attached to the arrest of the three Madera men sworn to enforce the law. For this reason there is special interest in the arrest made near Altoona on Thursday last. Even more interesting is this arrest which carried with it the confiscation of ten gallons of moonshine made in that section. Bigler township disliking moonshine, from whence comes a large percentage of the liquor that keeps Clearfield county wet. And rumor has it that this is the only real good moonshine made in this county any more to be made in and about Bigler township and retailers of that brand have a hard time keeping stock in hand. In fact, the federal prohibition agency, although they know who the retailers are, have never been able to catch the bootlegger with any stock on hand.

The three men arrested last Thursday evening, presumably while making a delivery to their Altoona distributor, were Constable Oscar Marion, his brother Harry Marion and M. Davis, all of Madera. Constable Marion was driving the car which the papers found on his person proved to be his own vehicle and while there was no incriminating evidence against the other two occupants of the car, all three were held in $1,000 bail for May term of court at Hollidaysburg by Alderman H. C. McDevland who gave them a hearing.

In the car was ten gallons of the brand which has practically put the Stoneville Chemical Company out of existence because of its superior quality.

The arrest was made on the Rock-horn mountain and many Altoona men who depended on their week-end supply from the source best known to Constable Marion went with parched throats while the aforesaid ten gallons repose in the state police head.

 "But at situation has been reversed in the last four years, so that today in business, and I do not believe our business is exceptional, because we are in all these states, I doubt if a cent of the interest paid at present, and the obligations run into several millions of dollars that we have handled through our own organization. I think we can say, therefore, that if that condition exists today and did not exist in 1914 and 1915, that it is due to the fact that the farmer is not making enough on his products to pay his taxes and interest and have anything left over. That is a result of the fact that the farmer is not organized and because he is not organized is forced to take the world market price as a basis for the price which receives in America."

Pennsylvania's Faith

Students are now familiar with the agricultural (county agents), engineering, mining, home economics and educational extension features maintained by the college. State and federal funds have done all this.
 "The buildings at State College are valued at $4,000,000 and the equipment in them is worth almost two million more. It is an assured fact that the college is so absolutely dependent upon state appropriations that if such financial aid were withdrawn for one year, three fourths of the students would have to be sent home and nearly all faculty members released from college employ."

LEITZINGER BROTHERS

ODDS AND ENDS AND THINGS

By J. D. C.

As a result of the World War they are mighty short of "cannon fodder" over in Europe and to the end of supplying this deficiency the thinking men of every European country are devising ways and means to increase the birthrate. A compulsory marriage law has been introduced in the Turkish Nationalist assembly providing that all men of 25 must marry and that families shall have one child at least every three years, said a dispatch from Angora today. It is designed to re-populate Turkey.

In France they are not so much concerned over how or when and where they get the babies, just so they get them. Agitation for protection of unmarried mothers in view of the declining birth rate has led to passage of an ordinance in the Department of Ardennes, Northern France, permitting any woman to enter a public maternity hospital and leave with her child without revealing her identity.

The Department was one of those occupied during the war by the Germans and later by Allied troops. Consequently unmarried mothers as a class are regarded with more sympathy there than in many other places. It is being urged that Paris adopt a similar ordinance on the ground that France is so much in need of children she should not neglect the mothers of any.

The Ardennes ordinance provides a prospective mother need only fill out a form giving her name, age, place of birth and residence and address of the person she wants notified in case of death. The woman herself seal this in an envelope which is never to be opened unless she requests it or she dies during childbirth.

The envelope is given a hospital number and filed. The woman is known in the hospital only by the number.

In connection with the movement

to have this law copied all over the country, the National Alliance for Increasing the Population of France soon will be debated in the Chamber of Deputies.

Births in these cities, such as Paris, Marseilles and Lyons, were 7 per cent less in 1922 than in 1921. There were 12 per cent fewer marriages. It is expected the whole subject soon will be debated in the Chamber of Deputies.

The dollar is getting smaller weekly. Yesterday it had only the same purchasing power as 63.1 cents in 1913, according to the index number of general prices compiled by Irving Fisher.

The peak of high prices was reached in May, 1920. Then as prices fell, the dollar rose. A year ago, in January, 1922, the dollar purchased the same amount of commodities as 72.6 cents before the war. The purchasing power of the pre-war dollar the last four weeks has been as follows:

Week ended January 13, 64.1c.
Week ended January 20, 63.8c.

Week ended February 3, 63.8c.
Week ended February 10, 63.1c.

"Have a drink of milk?"

Ten years ago that would have been a joke. Today it is an actuality and a practice. There is more milk being used today as ever before. Ice cream plants are running to more than capacity and in every locality there are new factories being built or additions being made to those already there. Dairy products are today a part of the daily ration of adults as much as children and more than one daddy cries today because the kids get the milk that the milk man leaves.

This being the case, why should we not give more attention to the subject of milk? Those of us who live in towns simply take for granted that we will always be able to get all the milk we want and give no thought of where tomorrow's supply is coming from.

Clearfield could no more afford to go without milk for a week than without water. What if the supply should dwindle or fail altogether?

County Agent Sterrett is giving the milk supply of the county great deal of attention. The Livestock Page in this issue, edited by him, is devoted entirely to subjects pertaining to milk production and distribution. It is a subject that every one of us should study and Mr. Sterrett has approached the subject from the consumer's as well as the producer's angle.

Read the Livestock Page as well as the front page. It will be profitable to you and your children.

Persons in open revolt against prohibition and all who preach disregard of law are the most dangerous radicals in the United States. Prof. Albert Bushnell Hart, of Harvard University, declared recently. His address was one of several during discussion here the National Republican Club of the question: "Is radicalism undermining constitutional government in the United States?"

The radicalism of the forces of lawless reaction, Prof. Hart said, was far more dangerous than the radicalism of those who tried to bring about changes in the American form of government.

State Senator Clayton R. Lusk, who served as chairman of a legislative committee that investigated radicalism in New York State, declared that the strength of the radical movement in this country had diminished considerably during the last few years. Though defending measures of repression of criminal radicalism, he said more important protection of the American Constitution was in firmation of its fundamental principles.

"Radicalism," said Norman Thomas, director of the League for Industrial Democracy, "is not undermining constitutional government in the United States half as much as the reactionary conservatism which tries to make of the Constitution a straitjacket."

The arrest of Constable Manion of Madera at Altoona one evening last week ought to go a long way toward proving the contention of The Progress that many local police officers were in sympathy with, at least in sympathy with, the bootleggers and other violators of the Eighteenth Amendment and a blight on the community.

It ought also to give the citizens of those communities where the peace officer are "good fellows" in their relations with violators, something tangible on which to base opinions as to their worthiness to continue in office.

The law abiding element of most communities, and we know that Bigler Township is no exception, have been helpless to better their plight. Although there is a prohibition statute on the books, with officers sworn to enforce that law, they daily see drunken men and other evidence of wholesale violation. It has not been an uncommon sight to see these selfsame officers smirking under the influence of moonshine liquor and home brew concoctions and even in advanced state of intoxication. Little wonder that they have wondered whether the old conditions, with the saloon was not better. At least, under the saloon, such a state of affairs was to be expected.

Bigler Township has the type of citizens that we think it will be some changes of complexion on next election day. The law and mighty, though blind and deaf, will fall.

quarters at Hollidaysburg.

The better class of citizens of Bigler township have long prayed to be delivered from the deplorable conditions existing, particularly in the town of Madera, where, practically every evening, and raised during the day, there are scenes which would do credit to the days of the open saloon.

Well do they know last traveling men coming out of that community report that Madera is now the wettest spot in the county. Particularly do they say that there are more drinks there than at any place they visit and that the howling, cursing and outrageous actions of the salooners are making for the town a reputation that is not enviable in this enlightened age.

These same men who tell of conditions at Madera will tell you that the substantial citizens of the town complain of these conditions and confess that they are helpless to lift the community to the level of American ideal and put it on a par with other communities where an effort is being made to enforce the law and ban the illicit liquor dealer and rum runner are equal outcasts instead of being held up as being "sleek enough to get by."

It is not at all unusual to hear the youth of Madera boasting of the ability of certain men to evade the law. We have it from responsible sources there that the youth who do understand the judgments of home brewing and home distilling is a serious article and it has been our privilege to smell of some of these concoctions. To judge from the conversation to be heard about Madera it is an accomplishment to be able to make liquor in which great pride is taken and to judge from the intoxicated men one sees on the streets, there are many bars running full blast although doors are locked and window blinds are drawn. Conditions generally make it very evident that there is an absolute lack of support on the part of Bigler township peace officials to the county and state officers charged with law enforcement.

The citizens of Bigler township, however, just the same as in all other communities are of the right type and will, in time, bowl over those misfits in office who are bringing the name of their community into disrepute. In fact, they are just waiting for the opportunity.

Law enforcement can never be expected from the crowd in control now. It would interfere with the source of their own supply.

SAVED FROM AN OPERATION

Now Recommends Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Washington, D. C.—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound saved me from an operation which a physician said I would have to have for a very bad case of female trouble. My system was all run down for two years after my little girl was born. Then I read of your wonderful medicine and decided to try it. I could hardly drag one foot after the other, and after taking six bottles of the Vegetable Compound I felt like a new woman. I now do all my housework, also washing and ironing, and do not know what real trouble is. My health is fine, and I weigh 140 pounds. When I started taking it I weighed 97 pounds. I gladly recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any one who is suffering from female trouble or is run down. You may use this testimonial for I am only too glad to let suffering women know what the Vegetable Compound did for me."—Mrs. L. A. HEWITT, 1529 Penna. Ave. S.E., Washington, D.C.

Such letters from women in every section of this country prove beyond question the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

If you are going to buy a Fordson Tractor we have the plow you need. John Deere built it especially for the Fordson. Henry Ford has approved it for use with the Fordson. It has important built-in features for the Fordson features possessed by no competitive plow. Before you buy the tractor, be sure to see the

JOHN DEERE NO. 40 TRACTOR PLOW

It's the plow with the self-adjusting hitch—This is an exclusive feature. Only the John Deere No. 40 has it.

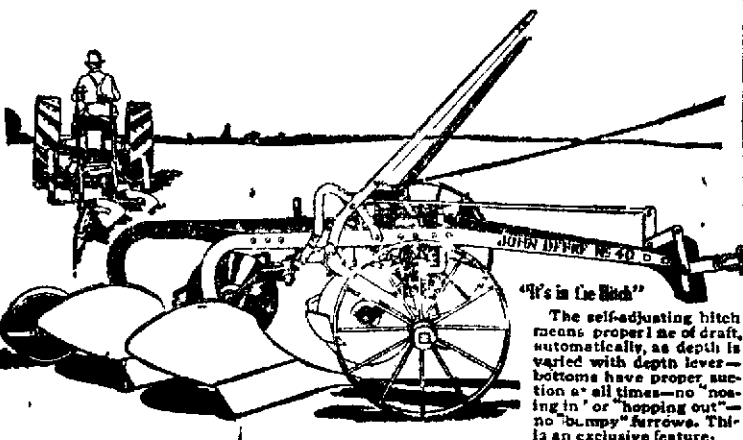

Because of this hitch, the plow automatically maintains the proper line of draft as depth of plowing is varied. The bottoms run true and have the right action at all times—no "nosing in" or "hopping out" of the ground.

The clevis flexes up and down, permitting the plow to run smoothly, maintain even depth and keep on doing good work regardless of the action of the tractor in passing over uneven ground—no "bumpy" furrows.

New process John Deere Steel in frame parts—cool, bright.

NEWS OF OUR NEIGHBORS

CURWENSVILLE

The Boys Marine Band gave the second of a series of Sunday afternoon concerts in the Morris Opera house, Saturday afternoon. There was not such a large crowd of people present, but those who were present enjoyed the hour and heard several fine selections of music. A silver collection was lifted amounting to a sum exceeding $30.

C. T. Doherty, who has been a Curwensville visitor with his brother W. Doherty, for a week or two, returned to his home in New Bethlehem last Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. James Bloomfield, of Johnson, Pa., guests in the home of Mrs. Manaval, High street Sunday and Monday.

Mr. Robert Adams, of Tyrone, is visiting Mrs. Marcha Cole, whose residence is on Anderson street.

There were drunks galloping about the streets of this town on Saturday night. Some of them had imbibed the real John Barleycorn while others swayed about having tasted imaginary moonshine.

and wanted to make an exhibition of themselves greatly to the disgust of all those who witnessed their antics. There was one act and the participants ran afoul of Chief Clark who escorted them to the office of Southdale, who assessed each a fine of $5.00.

There will be some of the others asked to step forward to the captain's desk for a like contribution.

About three hundred kids from the lower grades in the stone house of knowledge bided their time in the theatre yesterday afternoon and were admitted free to a feature of some nature that was on the screen interesting to the youngsters.

Frank McLaughlin was turned out of an upset sleigh Sunday forenoon and had one of his ankles and leg severely injured. He attended the morning service of St. Timothy Catholic church and in an effort to turn the sleigh around for a home trip the accident occurred.

Mr. I. Kantar, of the firm of Kantar & Sons, drifted over to Altoona yesterday for a hand shake with his numerous friends who are carrying on business in that city. While we are about it we might just as well say that Leonard Kantar has been selected as general manager of the new Kantar branch store to be opened at Bradford, Pa.

Five degrees below zero was the record in this vicinity yesterday morning. On February 8th, 1908, we had 18 degrees below the point, and a few years later on the same date, the needle said 38.

Today, after the noon hour, the first session of the Spangmoore Chautauqua which came to Curwensville for a three days stand, carried out the first program in the Strand theatre. The attendance was as large as could be expected at the first session. The concert by the Fisher-Schenk company was a most pleasing feature of the program and was well worth the price of admission alone. At the night session another concert was featured by this same combination of musicians. Owing to circumstances a change was made in the lecture; William Sterling Bettis, who has been booked for the task was listed for the second evening and Hon. Chas. H. Pope, substituted with his "social Redemption" Bettis will deliver his lecture "Life Portrayal" on the evening of the second day, Wednesday.

WINBURNE

The pageant "The Search for the Light," given Friday evening in the Presbyterian church under the auspices of the Women's Missionary Society, was unanimously voted a splendid success. Too much credit and praise cannot be accorded its able directors, Miss Bortner of the High School faculty, and Miss Dorothy Williams, teacher of Winburne Seventh Grade. Its interpretation, Christianity the only true religion, was clearly brought forth, and the audience felt that they had received a great deal of valuable instruction. About fifty people participated in the pageant. Principal roles being ably filled by Mrs. Thomas, Mrs. Mudge and Mr. John Barr. Appropriate music furnished by Mrs. David Hodge, aided by the choir, was an important feature. Very interesting and attractive were the costumes which were typical of the foreign lands represented by the various characters. The free will offering, amounting to $20, will be devoted to missions.

Much sympathy goes out to Mrs. A. E. Hess and son George and Miss Merritt who were called to Treadwell, Pa., on account of the death of their mother, Mrs. George Hess.

This said occurrence took place after a short illness with pneumonia. The eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. William Straw, he was well known here and friends of this place.

Kylertown is suffering an epidemic of measles. Many homes are quarantined, and every means is being taken to check the disease and it is hoped no serious developments will occur. Cooper Township High School and Kylertown schools will be closed during this week.

Miss Lillian Pooley, one of our efficient telephone operators, is spending the week-end with relatives in Clearfield.

Mrs. Dr. Thorp is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Cooper, of Beechwood, Pa.

Mrs. Miller McIndoe of Arcadia has returned to her home after visiting for a few days with her daughter Mrs. James Houston.

Mrs. Mudge and Mrs. G. F. Diven entertained the Women's Missionary Society very delightfully at the home of the former Thursday evening. The attendance was fine and the meeting a very inspiring one.

Mrs. Mudge and daughter, Miss Margaret, and Miss Huling went to St. Benedict Saturday morning to stay a few days. From there Miss Mudge will journey to Clearfield, having been drawn as a juror.

Thomas Charlton who has been gravely ill with pneumonia, is now making a steady recovery.

Mrs. Thomas Barr, who has been on the sick list for a few weeks, went to the hospital Friday for examination.

WHY NOT A DIAMOND VALENTINE?

You fellows to whom that "nicest girl in the world" has said that she would share the rest of her life with you, could make no more fitting gift on the eve of a Valentine than a diamond.

And you have often said that the layman buying a diamond places himself in his jeweler's hands, for diamonds are deceptive.

And many of the people for whom we have furnished those brilliant bits of sparkle tell us that they feel that they got every cent's worth for their money.

The Milk Supply Of The Country Analyzed

Where It Comes From, Where It Goes And What You Should Use

The supply of milk in the world might be compared to the little verse learned in childhood which goes something like this:

Little drops of water,
Little grains of sand,
Makes the mighty ocean,
And the dry land."

Few people realize the importance of the dairy business. We see a cow in the field here and there as we go along the road in the summer, or perhaps a herd of fine cattle grazing in the green pasture by the roadside, and we see trucks and wagons loaded with milk, every morning of the year, coming into town, yet do we fully appreciate the magnitude and volume connected with this branch of the farming industry. Of all farm crops and products produced on the farm, the dairy products stand first in the list, and in the State of Pennsylvania, according to the 1920 census, was 421,631,350 gallons of milk, representing almost one hundred million dollars worth of products, in the form of milk, cream, butter and cheese.

No accurate record is available for Clearfield County, but from statistics on hand, a fair average can be obtained for Clearfield County. There are approximately twelve thousand dairy cattle in the County, in milking herds over two years of age. The 1920 census shows that about 2,600,000 gallons of milk was produced in the year 1919 in Clearfield County. Of this amount produced, 492,919 gallons were sold as market milk. The balance was used on the farm, or sold in the following commodities:

3,598 gallons of cream, 7,621 gallons of butter-fat, 707,123 pounds of butter, made on the farm, and 353,839 pounds of this butter sold off the farm, the balance being used on the farm which would give a total value at market prices in 1920, of $418,836.00 for the dairy products produced on the farms of Clearfield County, and $414,447 value for the dairy products sold off the farm, which means that one-third of the dairy products produced in Clearfield County were consumed on the farms.

There are approximately three thousand farms in Clearfield County. Taking the average size of a family to be five, would mean that there are approximately fifteen thousand of a farm population in Clearfield County, leaving a balance of approximately ninety-three thousand in the towns and cities of the County. This brings us to an interesting point. If fifteen thousand of one-seventh of our population consumed one-third of the total dairy products produced in the County, there must be something radically wrong with the distribution and marketing when we find a surplus of milk during many months of the year in our large towns such as DuBois and Clearfield.

Statistics show that the average consumption of milk and dairy products on the farm is one and one-half pint per capita in the large cities it drops down to one pint per capita, and in small towns to almost one-half pint per capita. This means that the rural or farming population consumes almost the required amount of milk, namely, one quart per day per capita, while the inhabitants of the small towns consume only one-fourth the amount they should.

While no figures are available for Clearfield County, yet it is interesting to know that during a recent investigation, it was found that in the United States the total amount of milk produced is consumed in the following manner:

45% in fluid milk, 41% was made into butter, 6% into cheese, 2.9% condensed milk, 2.7% made into ice cream, and the balance fed to calves.

Clearfield County farmers can compete with dairy communities well supplied with cheap labor, and consequently very little milk is produced in this County is made into condensed milk or cheese. These two products are profitable means of utilizing surplus in large dairy centers.

FOOD VALUE OF MILK

Very few housewives appreciate the true food value of milk and its importance in the daily menu. Some think of it mainly as a food for children, others as a luxury, only to be used in tea or coffee when visitors are present.

A great deal of investigation has been done on milk during the recent years by the leading nutrition experts, especially by Dr. McCollum, who is known internationally for his work on this subject. He states, "There is no substitute for milk and its use should be distinctly increased instead of diminished, regardless of cost. It is a universally recognized fact that milk is essential for the proper growth and development of children and is should be equally as well known that milk is just as necessary in the diet of the adult as in that of the growing child. Any diet which will not support normal development in the young will not support the greatest well-being in the adult. Milk is our greatest protective food and its price must be allowed to go up as long as the cost of production makes it necessary and up so far as is essential to make milk production a profitable business. Unless this is done, the effects will soon become apparent in the lowering of our standards of health and efficiency."

An examination of any large groups of people in the cities or towns will show that where there is a high mortality from tuberculosis, milk is not being used to any great extent and in any large group where milk purchases are large this disease is not a menace. It is well known that in institutions where tuberculosis is successfully treated, milk forms the principle article of the diet of the inmate.

The reason for the consumption and the recommendations for the increase in consumption can be stated in a single sentence: Milk is one of the cheapest and is the most wholesome of foods because it is both a protective food and a food easily available for use by bone and muscle. The farm wife has not known precisely that one quart of milk is equal to four and three-tenths eggs as a source of protein, and to eight and five-tenths eggs, or one pound of lean meat, as a source of energy, as scientists have found that it is, but she has long preferred the milk as a food for her children, and has sold the eggs. The city housewife has not known the precise fact that milk at sixteen cents a quart is as cheap a source of proteins as a loin steak would be at thirty-five, and four-tenths cents a pound, or as eggs would be at forty-five cents a dozen, and she has likewise been scientifically ignorant of the extent to which milk is valuable as a source of mineral content.

Our high standards of living can be kept up without fear of ruinous competition, only if we choose for our diet those foods that give the best nutrition for the best price. Among our foods, dairy products easily take first prize.

TO ERADICATE CATTLE LICE

Most Satisfactory Treatment is Application of Raw Linseed Oil, Says Doctor Riley.

Application of raw linseed oil is the most satisfactory treatment for cattle infested with lice and other parasites, says Dr. W. A. Riley, chief of the division of entomology at University farm at St. Paul, Minn. One pint of oil applied thoroughly with a brush or rag will do for four or five cows. The application should be especially thorough on upper parts of the neck along the back from the poll to the base of the tail, the shoulder tops, and about the folds of the udder and esentechon, or it is in these places that the lice are the most abundant.

Doctor Riley says it is desirable to have infestations to clip the hair for a width of three or four inches along the back from the head to the base of the tail. The treatment with oil should be repeated in about two weeks after the first application in order to kill the lice, which have hatched from the eggs. Thereafter it should be applied once a month during the winter. It is important to use raw linseed oil, and not the boiled linseed, for the latter may cause skin irritation.

WHY EAT OLEO?

We have on the one hand the manufacturers of Oleo advertising daily in our papers, that their product is cheaper and just as wholesome as butter. We have a cry from the farmers, on the other hand, that the Oleo-margarine business is driving the dairy farmer out of business so far as making butter is concerned. What is the real truth of the matter?

Oleo-margarine does not contain as much food value as does butter. Feeding experiments show that butter is far superior to oleo-margarine and that milk fat contains elements, called vitamins, essential to growth and that are not found in the vegetable or animal fats from which oleo-margarine is made. Butter, because of its growth-producing elements, is now recognized by every well informed person as being superior to oleo-margarine.

If measured in terms of energy alone, oleo-margarine is far less equal to butter, but under the same terms of measurement and beef tallow are also equal to butter. But who is there that advocates the use of lard or tallow or bread? Indeed, foods are no longer measured simply by the energy they will supply. We know that there are some other things demanded, and among these are the vitamins found in butter.

The superiority of butter to oleo-margarine has been shown many times in the feeding of small animals. Rats and guinea pigs have been fed rations just the same except that one lot will have received butter and the other oleo-margarine. The results of these tests have shown in every instance that the rats receiving butter made better growth and reproduced their kind in better vigor and strength.

This fact has also been observed in various charitable institutions. When these institutions sought to economize by using oleo-margarine they have found many cases of an increase of disease and lack of thrift on the part of the inmates. Perhaps the most conclusive evidence of this was made in a survey of orphanage in the city of Rochester, New York, some years ago. Seven children, whose average age was eleven years were fed on a uniform diet, except that the butter fed during the first six months was replaced by oleo-margarine during the second six months. During the third period of six months, butter was again furnished.

Here are the surprising results: The average gain made by each child in the first six months when butter was used was 6.32 pounds. During the second period when oleo-margarine was fed, there was no gain in weight. Indeed, the children averaged a loss of 1.35 pounds. When butter was replaced the third period of six months, the children again gained back with a gain of 8.12 pounds for each child.

It is needless to say that this demonstration was quite sufficient to convince the managers of this orphanage that they should forever abandon the use of oleo-margarine.

During the past year the amount of oleo-margarine consumed in the United States was sufficient to replace about 5,000,000 pounds of milk that might have been used in the manufacture of butter. This is equal to the milk of 600,000 cows, or half the cow population of the largest dairy state in the Union. It means not only was there less butter consumed, but that there was 5,000,000,000 pounds of whole milk forced out to the market, which tended to depress the prices of all other dairy products.

Instances could be multiplied by the thousandfold to show how essential to the welfare and health of people is this element that is found in butterfat. This was shown very conclusively during the great war when certain sections were deprived of dairy products. The people, particularly the children, developed certain types of malnutrition that only the feeding of butterfat or its equivalent in the form of something else was able to overcome. These facts have been frequently reported in Hoard's Dairyman.

The few farmers who fail to consume dairy products and purchase so called substitutes

MILK AND MILK PRODUCTS

The United States Department of Agriculture has set certain standards which the different States have accepted, and require manufacturers to conform to in name and content for the following milk products.

Blended milk is milk modified in the composition so as to have definite and stated percentage of one or more of its constituents.

Pasteurized milk is milk that has been subjected to a temperature not lower than one hundred and forty-five degrees Fahrenheit, for not less than thirty minutes. Unless it is bottled hot, it is cooled to fifty degrees Fahrenheit or lower.

Grade A milk is divided into raw milk and pasteurized milk. Milk coming under the first class must come from cows free from disease, as determined by the tuberculin test and physical examinations by a qualified veterinarian, and shall be produced and handled by employees free from disease as determined by the medical inspection of a qualified physician under sanitary conditions such that the bacteria count shall not exceed ten thousand per cubic centimeter at the time of delivery to the consumer.

Pasteurized Grade A milk shall be produced under the same conditions, and shall have more than two hundred thousand bacteria per cubic centimeter at any time, nor more than ten thousand bacteria per cubic centimeter at the time of delivery to the consumer.

Grade B milk shall be produced under the same sanitary conditions, and at no time exceed one million bacteria per cubic centimeter. All milk of this class shall be pasteurized under official supervision, and the bacteria count not exceed fifty thousand per cubic centimeter when delivered to the consumer.

Grade C milk shall be produced under similar sanitary conditions, and shall include all milk that is produced under conditions such that the bacterial count is not in excess of one million per cubic centimeter.

Sterilized milk is milk that has been heated at the temperature of boiling water, or higher, for a length of time sufficient to kill all organisms present.

Homogenized milk is milk that has been mechanically treated in such a manner as to alter its physical properties with particular reference to the condition and appearance of the fat globules.

Condensed, evaporated milk or concentrated milk is the product resulting from the evaporation of a considerable portion of the water from the whole fresh milk obtained direct from the cow and contains no less than 25.5 per cent. of total solids, and not less than 7.8 per cent. of milk fat.

Sweetened condensed evaporated or concentrated milk is the product resulting from the evaporation of a considerable portion of the water from the whole fresh milk obtained direct from the cow and contains no less than 25.5 per cent. of total solids, and not less than 7.8 per cent. of milk fat.

should be held up for public contempt and ridicule, not only for their neglect of the health of their own flesh and blood, but for the treason to the industry of which they are a part. These men, and we are glad to know that there are only a few, have no just grounds for complaint if dairy products become relatively cheaper than other products, for it is they who help to create a surplus and set a mighty example for the city consumers in certain cities and towns over the country, milk campaigns have been carried on to increase the dairy products consumed and to try and show the fallacy of using filled milk (milk that the butterfat therein has been taken out and vegetable fats substituted) and discard the use of filled milk and oleo and other substitutes. In several cities where the milk campaigns have been put on to educate the people to the value of dairy products, the merchants have gotten together to put Oleo in disrepute and to show its fallacy. These merchants came to realize that the welfare of their city and their business was directly dependent upon the prosperity of the surrounding country. They saw the value of putting an end to the competition of false butter or butter substitutes with the real product.

THE COST OF A QUART OF MILK

Study This Article and You Will Not Envy the Man Who Is Laboring to Produce.

PROFITS SMALL

By W. C. STERRETT
County Farm Agent

Few people not actively engaged in the production of milk realize the amount of labor and total cost to produce milk and deliver it to the door step of the city consumer. It would be interesting for the consumer, who is not familiar with the various phases of milk production to go with a quart of milk through its various processes from the time the food, which the cow consumes, is taken from the soil, fed to the cow and taken from the cow in the form of milk, is strained, cooled, hauled to the market where it is pasteurized, cooled, sterilized, bottled and delivered to the doorstep of the consumer.

It is an interesting journey, and one which requires experience, hard labor and money to produce a product that is sweet and clean at the time it reaches the consumer.

To produce a hundred pounds of milk, or forty-six and one-half quarts, requires on an average of 2.88 hours of labor, 33.5 pounds grain (concentrates), 45.3 pounds hay, 11.5 pounds of other forage, 32.2 pounds silage, and 9.4 pounds of other succulent feed, which at prevailing prices, figuring labor at twenty-five cents an hour, and feeds at the average yearly net cost of one hundred pounds of milk would be three dollars and twenty-five cents, or seven cents per quart. This would mean that the cost during the winter months would be slightly greater and during the summer months below this average. In fact a difference of almost three cents a quart is found in the cost of producing one hundred pounds of milk in the summer as compared to the winter. The feed and labor cost represents, on an average, only eighty per cent. of the total cost of producing the milk on the farm. The other twenty per cent. represents all overhead expenses, such as that portion of equipment devoted to the dairy and depreciation and other minor expenses such as veterinarian fees, etc., which will all add to make an additional cost of eighty-seven and one-half cents per one hundred, or a total cost of four dollars and thirteen cents per hundred, or 8.8 cents per quart. The above figures represent an average production of five thousand pounds of milk per cow per year, which would mean that if the average cow in Clearfield County produces five thousand pounds per year, the farmer could sell his milk at the farm for 8.8 cents per quart and break even, but investigation shows that such is not the case for the average production in Clearfield County is only slightly over four thousand pounds per cow per year, which means that the farmer who has four thousand pound cows is not getting twenty-five cents per hour for his labor, nor interest on his money, but rather is doing the work for the exercise and joy he might be getting out of it, and at the same time using the capital tied up in his dairy operations for the good of his fellow mankind.

Why is it then that the average dairyman can produce milk year after year with a loss, and how long will he continue to do so? The consumer says why is it that we pay fourteen cents per quart and the farmer gets only eight cents at the farm? If it is true, but the story is only half told, for it costs on an average of one and one-half cents per quart to deliver this milk to the distributing plant, and the remaining four and one-half cents to cover the other operations that the milk goes through from the time it leaves the cow.

The distributor, through whom the milk is pasteurized and delivered to the consumer, must work in close cooperation with both the producer and the consumer. The distributor utilizes the surplus of the farmer over the need of the market, and the consumer, that will be a fair profit for his entire milk.

The consumer can help to make the cost of milk by consuming the proper amount of which nutrition experts claim a quart a day per person would mean every home on an average, consuming twice as much milk as they do at the present time. For investigation shows that the average consumption in Clearfield town is less than a pint per capita. Further than this, the consumer can materially assist in the lowering of the cost of milk by using more liquid milk and less condensed and evaporated milk.

FARM BUREAU TOPICS TOLD IN SHORT WAY

One of the important meetings of the month will be a potato meeting, held in the Whitehead Building, DuBois, February 23rd, at 1:30 P. M. Professor Nixon of State College will be the speaker. Everybody invited. Professor Nixon's reputation speaks for itself. It will be worth a hundred dollars of any man's money to hear him and it won't cost a cent.

The Annual Meeting of the DuBois Dairyman's Co-operative Association will be held on Thursday of this week, February 15th.

The Farm Bureau will order a car of Michigan Disease Free Russets through the County Co-operative Association, and would advise everyone who desires to obtain potatoes to send their orders in at once.

The readers of this page will notice that almost the entire page has been allotted to the dairy cow and her products. As will be noted, one of the essentials to more profit, is the eradication of tuberculosis. Where a number in a community sign up under the accredited plan arrangements will be made to take care of the work promptly. In the Clearfield district a test will be made within the next few weeks. Any one desiring to have their herds tested, at that time, March,

ESSENTIALS IN DAIRY PRODUCTION

By M. J. ARMS
Dairy Extension Department
Penna. State College

A good dairy cow is the most efficient means known for converting the coarser feeds grown on the farm into human food. Rightly kept, she provides the most effective way of marketing these feeds. Good cows, good dairymen and a fair market are the main factors in successful and profitable dairying. The first two of these factors are within the control of the individual farmer. Any change in market conditions usually comes from a change in the conditions of demand and supply or unit cost.

Farmers can save money, as well as time, by ordering their lime, fertilizer, etc., at an early date, so that they can be hauled to the farm on the snow. Prices are up and likely to go higher, so that delay will be expensive.

The Farm Bureau can still obtain the Breeder's Gazette and Hoard's Dairyman at reduced rates, and can take care of the subscriptions of all who desire.

Communities desiring Farm Bureau Institutes during the month of March should send in their requests at once, together with a program of local talent and subjects they desire to be discussed by State speakers. These must be in within the next week in order to obtain speakers from the State College for the month of tion on the part of producers. The difference between good and the poor dairy is great. The average cow in Pennsylvania produces 4,000 pounds of milk per year. A cow fed and cared for to the best known methods recently completed a record of 25,787 pounds of milk and 2,787 pounds of butterfat in one year. This one cow is doing the work of more than six average cows. It can hardly be hoped that an average cow in the State ever have a record as great as this, but the average does not produce at all. A poor chance of a profit above all expenses of the year. The Babcock farmer to determine what each cow in the herd is doing. The dairyman who uses these methods of selection on the performance of cows is adding an enormous hazard to his chance of making a profit on the year's business. Weed out the boarders in the herd and invest the capital in better cows on some more profitable farm enterprise.

The successful dairyman must have enough interest in his work to keep posted on the latest and best methods and put them into practice. The good cow must be cared for properly to do her best, and the good cow doing her best is the cow that is paying her feed bills, and putting light plants, running water, etc., in the home of her owner. BOXING MATCH PLEASES FIGHT FANS

The boxing match at the Globe Theatre last evening gave very general satisfaction to a large audience of fight fans.

The final bout was a whirlwind while it lasted. In this torrid session, scheduled for ten rounds, but which only lasted a little more than one, Kid Layman, the sturdy Huntington, W. Va., lightweight, knocked the stuffing out of Young Griffith, of Lockport, N. Y., shortly after the fourth round began.

Bobby Roberts, of DuBois, and Jackie Lewis, of Jamestown, N. Y., were pretty evenly matched in their bout, it taking a strong partisan to award the decision to either man. Both boys showed considerable promise.

Mickey Burkett, the Altoona dynamiter, blasted "Sprag" Keenan of DuBois into dreamland during the fifth round of their scheduled eight round bout. "Sprag" has the appearance of a corner but Burkett was too sturdy and had too much experience for the DuBois boy.

K. O. Kline and Frankie Ross, of Huntington, W. Va., went six rounds to a draw.

as the manufacture of automobiles. The man who can and will put his farming operations on good sound business principles has gone a long way in solving the question of successful farming. The important factor in any business is a complete set of accounts and the intelligent use of information to be obtained from them. Five minutes work a day will keep such accounts and give information which can be obtained in no other way. Every farmer should know which farm enterprises are profitable and why they are so.

High production is a very important factor in cost but it must come from cows having the ability to convert feed into milk efficiently. When one man in a community gets 10,000 pounds of milk and 330 pounds of butter-fat per cow per year from his herd at a feed cost of $82.00 per cow, while his neighbor is getting 7200 pounds of milk and 250 pounds of butter-fat from a herd of about the same breed of cows at a feed cost of $86.00 per head it is very significant of the difference in cows as well as dairymen.

PLAY FOR CHILDREN

Play is a necessity of life. Without it children will not grow up into healthy, happy and normal men and women.

A very young child needs play to develop his muscles. It teaches him how to use his little hands and legs. He may play with a rattle or merely with his own toes, but all the time the exercise is helping him to grow stronger and bigger.

As he gets older, he learns to walk around and to make things. He imitates and uses his imagination, so that he can turn scrap paper into money and button hooks into fish hooks. He is broadening his outlook and improving his mind as well as his body.

At first a child plays alone. He invents all kinds of pastimes. He is satisfied to do a few simple things over and over again. Later, he requires company. He likes to play games that need two or three people. These games are less simple. New games have new things to teach him. When they no longer teach, the boy or girl tire of them and seek different ones.

Then, too, through competition games he learns sportsmanship and self reliance. In no other way do children learn so readily how to be good winners and good losers. Here they are thrown in contact with others of their own age. This helps to develop their judgment and ability to mix with other people. It is good for them in every way.

By all means let your child play outdoors as much as possible and with other children!

STOMACH UPSET?

Get at the Real Cause—Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets

That's what thousands of stomach sufferers are doing now. Instead of taking tonics, or trying to patch up a poor digestion, they are attacking the real cause of the ailment—clogged liver and disordered bowels.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets arouse the liver in a soothing, healing way. When the liver and bowels are performing their natural functions, away goes indigestion and stomach troubles.

Have you a bad taste, coated tongue, poor appetite, a lazy, don't-care feeling, no ambition or energy, trouble with undigested foods? Take Olive Tablets the substitute for calomel.

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a purely vegetable compound mixed with olive oil. You will know them by their olive color. They do the work without griping, cramps or pain.

Take one or two at bedtime for quick relief. Eat what you like. 15c and 30c.

HEALTH CRUSADERS DRINK OUR GOOD MILK

If your kiddies belong to the Health Crusaders, the new organization in the schools to bring the kiddies back to normalcy in a physical way, you'll find that milk plays an important part in the scheme.

And our milk is of such a quality that the kiddies will come back much quicker under the regime of PASTEURIZED milk than they will under any other kind, for the pasteurized milk is so protected that they are not in danger from the germs that might lurk in their milk.

Let them drink plenty of our PASTEURIZED milk and get stronger.

The first gray hair; the first eye-blur

Have you suffered that first age-blur of the eyes that comes with what we call middle age? If you haven't, it's because you're not yet forty, for this eye trouble comes to everyone as about that age. It usually begins and is first noticed when reading.

This blur is a danger signal. It forces you to get the facts about your eyes. If you already wear glasses, from now on you will need new lenses or close work. Therefore it is immensely valuable to know that you can have lenses for distance and for reading in one pair of glasses; a combination of two pairs in one.

These bifocals are a remarkable device. Instantaneously, you can change your vision from distance, through one type of lens to close up, through another. With bifocals of Wollworth manufacture complete range of vision, far and near, is instantaneously, and this through beautiful inconspicuous lenses. In bifocals, as in every other Wollworth product, all that Science can give and Artistry add are at your command.

The service and quality of goods we offer you are of this high nature. You have learned to expect that of us. And we in turn realize that it is only by maintaining such standards that we can hope to retain the confidence you have in us. Bifocals, as in every other Wollworth product, you get here, the best is your due—and our pride.
